Gen. Eisenhower Preparing To Fly To Europe

Confers With Truman In Washington Prior To Departure

By WILLIAM KERWIN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower arrives in Washington today for briefing on the world situation and American plans for the defense of western Europe against Communist aggression.

Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Atlantic pact forces for European defense, comes directly to Washington from a brief Christmas vacation spent with his wife's family in Denver.

Originally he had planned to go from Denver to New York, where he would wind up his affairs as president of Columbia university, but he changed his plans to come to Washington first after Tuesday night's top level Blair House meeting.

Confers With Truman

Among the men who met with President Truman then were Defense Secretary Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff. The White House said that Eisenhower would have attended if he had been in Washington.

Eisenhower will confer with the President and about the same group as met with the Chief Executive. In addition, he will meet with the joint chiefs of staff for a complete military briefing.

The supreme commander is expected to fly to Europe, where temporary headquarters have been set up in a Paris hotel, next week. His first duties abroad probably will be the formation of a staff around a nucleus already named.

Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, now vice chief of staff of the U. S. Army and one of the nation's top military strategists, already has been named chief of staff for the new European setup.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The White House has announced that President Truman will nominate Stanton Griffis (left) to be this country's first ambassador to Spain since December 31, 1945. At the same time it was learned that Jose Felix Lequerica (right) former Spanish foreign minister, will be Franco's envoy to the United States.

Recognition Of Spain Seen As Direct Slap At Kremlin

By JOHN A. REICHMANN
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—President Truman's decision to restore full diplomatic relations with Spain is regarded today as a direct slap at the Kremlin's exploitation of Spain for political propaganda.

The move is also viewed in diplomatic quarters as aimed at tieing the Francisco Franco regime into the international family of free European nations.

The nomination of Stanton Griffis, New York and California financier, also indicates that the U. S. will seek to get Franco's regime on a self-sustaining basis to justify loans for reconstruction and development.

For some time Franco's govern-

Eight Fires Cause Loss Of Over $180,000

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Damages totaled more than $180,000 today from eight fires which destroyed homes and buildings in western Pennsylvania and made 76 persons homeless overnight.

At Millvale 150 volunteer firemen fought three hours early today before subduing a blaze that caused $15,000 damages to four two-story brick business places and resulted in slight injuries to three of the fire fighters.

Saegerstown Fire

Last night in Saegerstown fire caused $60,000 damages to the Ralph Mains apartment and office building and forced 12 residents into sub-zero weather.

A defective flue was blamed for $200 fire damages to a three-story brick dwelling in Pittsburgh's south side district last night. But quick action by firemen saved a five-family apartment and two

Industrial Use Of Gas Is Curtailed

Industrial gas use has been cut by fifty per cent, Thomas J. Foley, manager of the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company said today.

The supply of gas for residences is adequate, as of now, Mr. Foley said, and with reasonable use there should be no shortage.

"Cutting the industrial use fifty per cent was a precautionary move" said Mr. Foley. "The industries affected have standby fuels, either oil or propane gas and are now using it."

Since the local eight inch line was recently tapped into the huge 26 inch line running from Texas to Buffalo, the supply of gas for this district has been increased, he said.

Spanish Government Circles Are Pleased By Truman Action

MADRID, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Spanish government circles are reported today to be highly satisfied over President Truman's decision to appoint Stanton Griffis as U. S. Ambassador to Madrid in a resumption of full diplomatic relations.

These same circles think that former Foreign Minister Jose Felix Lequerica is the most likely candidate to be the Spanish Ambassador to Washington.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

One local resident on Neshannock avenue, heeding Pa Newc's suggestion in Wednesday's column to check his old thermometer against a new one, discovered 12 degrees difference between the two about 6 o'clock this morning. The new one registered a mere 10 below, while the older fellow chattered his teeth at 22 below.

About the only outdoor work of the State Highway Department under way at the present time, is the unloading of cinders. A car load of the scarce material has been received and is being assigned to various stock piles in the county. Each year cinders are becoming more scarce and in a few years, some other means will have to be devised to make highways safe during snowy weather.

Residents who failed to take their morning supply of milk in from the porch early enough the past two mornings, found that the milk solidified had risen several inches above the bottle top. The fluid had to be thawed out before Junior could enjoy his rolled oats.

When the local fire department comes to tally its records for the year next week, it will find that fires in New Castle alone were quite costly in 1950. At least three fires of major proportions have leveled buildings within the city limits taking quite a toll in property value.

Good samariatans have been attending to their deeds of supplying the district's feathered population with food over the past few days. Several bird feeding stations have been erected about the city and are attracting many daily boarders during meal times.

Midwest Is Now Getting Relief From Zero Wave

Chicago Expects Return To Near Normal Weather

(By International News Service)

A southwest wind brought relief to the midwest from a record cold wave today and a blanket of clouds shielded the south—but winter tightened its icy grip on the eastern seaboard and parts of the Ohio vlaley.

Little snow was reported in the area from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic coast and south to the gulf states, but the icy weather continued to disrupt train and bus traffic in some eastern sections

Trains from Columbus and Cincinnati ran two hours late into Chicago.

Seasonal Levels Near

Weather bureau observers in Chicago, said however, a southwest wind in pushing midwest temperatures upward and a return to seasonal levels is in sight.

Mercury Will Rise In District

Temporary Respite From Sub-Zero Is Promised Today

(By International News Service)

Temporary respite at least was promised today from the frigid wave gripping Pennsylvania, with temperatures expected to climb to about freezing even.

In Philadelphia, where the mercury hovered around 10 above this morning, the reading was expected to go as high as 30 today.

Pittsburgh registered a chill 4 above this morning, with the mercury expected to soar to a comparatively tepid 28 to 34.

Zero, near-zero or sub-zero temperatures prevailed throughout most of the state early this morning. A low reading of 17 below zero was reported at Brookville.

Morgantown, W. Va., reported 0; Wheeling, W. Va., 2 above; Blairsville, Pa., 12; Altoona, 3, and Philipsburg, 6.

Crisp Thirteen Below Recorded For Second Day

District residents, for the second straight morning made a shivery dash for the coal cellar or the thermostat, as outside temperatures once more registered an official 13 below, keeping pace with Wednesday's 13 below record.

Some residents who turned on their faucets this morning, found only a gurgling sound greeting them rather than clear cold water indicating that the penetrating temperatures had solidified the water.

Rural residents again officially report temperatures in various sections from 10 to 20 degrees below the zero mark. A reliable thermometer in the Enon Valley section which read 16 below on Wednesday, bore the same reading this morning, bearing out that today's low was on a par with the previous morning's readings.

Relief In Sight

Weather experts brought some words of cheer to the local area. The thermometer is promised to rise to the freezing point today and

March Call For Draftees Is Set For 80,000 Men

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The defense department called on the selective system today for 80,000 draftees to be inducted into the army during March.

The call brings to 450,000 the number of draftees requested so far and is in line with a winter mobilization program under which draftees will be inducted at a regular rate of 80,000 per month.

Draft quotas for January and February were raised to 80,000 in a special call two weeks ago. Two National Guard divisions and five National Air Guard groups also are to be brought into service during these months.

The navy and air force announced today they will make no direct use of selective service, but that they are assured of a big increase in recruits from among those who prefer volunteering to the draft.

The armed services are driving toward a goal which will increase their total strength from the present level of 2,400,000 to about 3,100,000 by July 1.

Chiang's Army Making Ready For Offensive

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN
(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)

TOKYO, Dec. 29.—(Friday)—Reports from Taipei said today Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist army on Formosa has reached an advanced stage in its plans for a counter-offensive against Communist China by invading the mainland.

These reports said the army has designated four generals to lead the invasion of the Asiatic continent from Chiang's island stronghold, where for a year and a half the Generalissimo has been training his troops for the special job of returning to the mainland.

The Pan Asian News Alliance said it has learned the plan for invasion is now ready. The agency said the plan will be instituted "immediately after a possible modification of the current United States policy of neutralizing Taiwan (Formosa.)"

Pan Asian said names of the four generals and details of the invasion plan are top secret.

The report indicated Chiang's government anticipates a partial relaxation of American policy shortly to permit Nationalists to resume commando raids on the China coast.

Plan New Move For Settlement Of Korean Issue

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 28—A new drive to compel the big five powers—preferably including Communist China—to make a major effort to devise a peaceful solution of the Korean issue is being mapped today by the 12-member U. N. Asia-Arab bloc.

This group, led by Sir Benegal Rau of India, originally drafted the unsuccessful negotiation call to Mao Tze-Tung's regime and established the assembly's moribund three-man cease-fire committee. The latter has yet to reach a decision and summon the 60-member political committee into session for hearing its report.

Marking Time

Pending the awaited mammoth attack on U. N. forces in Korea by the massed Chinese armies, the tendency at Lake Success headquarters is to mark time, and let

Three Seeking Presidency Of State Teachers

HARRISBURG, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The candidacies of three schoolmen for the presidency of the Pennsylvania State Education Association today split delegates attending the 98th annual convention at Harrisburg.

The three-way battle momentarily overshadowed the scheduled approval of the legislative committee's proposed saarly hike.

Barring last minute withdrawals to allow an uncontested election of a president in the interest of harmony, nominations will be made this afternoon for Paul S. Christman, supervisor of Schuylkill Haven schools and chairman of the legal service committee; John Lumley, Sullivan county school superintendent; and Robert E. Dawson, vice-principal of West Scranton high school.

The 1951 president will be installed Friday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The all-time record of more than 43 years consecutive service in Congress was broken today by Rep. Adolph J. Sabath (D) Ill., 84-year-old dean of the House.

The record was previously held by Sen. Justin S. Morrill (R) Vermont, who served without interruption 43 years, 9 months and 24 days in the House and Senate. He entered the House March 3, 1855 and served until his death Dec. 27, 1898.

Sabath began his lengthy service in the House March 4, 1907 and has served continuously since then. He is chairman of the House rules committee.

Gen. MacArthur Predicts Drive Early Next Month

Huge Enemy Force Being Deployed To Make Korea Drive

By ROBERT SCHAKNE
(I. N. S. War Correspondent)

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Dec. 28.—The 250,000-man United Nations army in Korea was alerted by its supreme commander tonight to be ready for a vast Red offensive due to begin during the first ten days of January.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Headquarters predicted the all-out drive by forward elements of more than 1,350,000 Chinese and North Korean Communist troops, aimed at overrunning South Korea, will be launched during that period.

In Battle Positions

The supreme commander's intelligence officials in Tokyo warned that more than 277,000 front-line Chinese soldiers, along with some 200,000 Korean Reds, are fully deployed in battle positions to spearhead the giant push.

An intelligence service summary, moreover, revealed that China's Communist government has tripled its military budget for 1951, appropriating eight billion dollars for war operations.

MacArthur's announcement was underscored by steadily mounting enemy patrol thrusts along the Eighth Army's entire line bisecting the Korean peninsula adjacent to and south of the 38th Parallel.

Admiral Says Tanks And Artillery Can Hold Back Chinese

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN
(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)

TOKYO, Dec. 28.—The admiral who created a naval firewall that held 11 Chinese divisions back from the Hungnam beachhead said today the army could do the same with artillery and tanks.

Rear Adm James H. Doyle, USN, said normal batteries of army artillery could take the place of warship guns to work with planes and tanks in creating a similar firewall far inland, beyond the range of naval gunfire.

His statement is strategically important at this time as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops are facing the prospect of a giant battle with an estimated 1,350,000 Chinese and North Korean communist soldiers on the Korean front.

Questioned specifically about whether he thought a Hungnam-

Predictions For Year 1951

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Premier Stalin will "over-reach himself," Bernard M. Baruch will go to "the forefront among the world's statesmen," and Margaret Truman will announce "important matrimonial plans."

These are some of the predictions of things to come in the new year made today by New York astrologer and numerologist Florence Anne Jensen, who also believes the date March 7, 1951, "will mark a turning point in the history of the United States."

Whether the "turning point" for America will be for the better or worse Miss Jensen does not say, but she explains that it will come about this way:

"This nation was born on July 4, 1776. An eclipse falling into the eleventh house of the U. S. chart on March 7, 1951, will determine which nations and individuals will join forces with us, and which will oppose us."

The year also will be one of U. S. expansions "and resulting contractions," states Miss Jensen, explaining that the expansions will be in the military field, production, prices and "general unrest." Resulting contractions, she adds, will include shortages and limitations placed on labor.

In the realm of personal horoscopes, Miss Jensen predicts Stalin will over-reach himself "in seeking territorial expansion." Stalin also will suffer failing health, according to the Jensen horoscope.

Baruch, in Miss Jensen's horoscope, will take "positive action which will benefit the entire world."

Miss Truman, the astrologer predicts, "will increase her stature during 1951," and the "important matrimonial" decision will come in the spring.

Scotland Yard Has Baffling Case In Theft Of Stone

LONDON, Dec. 28. — (INS) — Scotland Yard was up against its most baffling real-life case today with still no clue to the whereabouts of the stolen British coronation stone.

The hunt for the "stone of Scone" spread to the county of Essex where it was reported that a group in a small boat had dumped a "heavy bundle" into the Crouch river.

Dredging equipment was being rushed to the scene in the slim hope that the heavy bundle might be the priceless relic.

Even the name of King George VI has been invoked in an effort to recover the ancient stone which the English took from Scotland centuries ago.

Alan Campbell Don, dean of Westminster, in a B. B. C. broadcast last night said the king was "greatly distressed" and joined the appeal for everyone to help recover the rock which is sometime known as the "stone of distiny".

MANY EXCAVATIONS

Three hundred and seventy-seven excavations in city thoroughfares were made this year, according to a study of statistics at the city department of engineers.

Slow Progress

Later congress appropriated more than 62 million dollars for Spain. The Economic Cooperation Administration will handle the fund, with the Export-Import bank acting as fiscal agent.

Thus far Spain has put forward only one project regarded as assuring repayment. This is for a fertilizer plant to improve agricultural output and raise the standard of living.

Griffis, therefore, may be useful in pointing out projects which would be likely to be approved. He might also make clear what domestic reforms are needed to obtain blanket access to the U. S. funds.

On the strategic side, his appointment is expected to lead other free nations to accept Franco as one well-situated ally who might help defend Europe and whose anti-communist sentiments are unquestioned.

Franco Spain has long been a chief target for Kremlin propaganda broadsides.

The U. S. strongly opposed the UN proposals sponsored by Russia in 1946 that there be an economic and political boycott of Spain. It had already withdrawn its ambassador as a sign of displeasure but had already found that this had rallied many elements around Franco.

Earlier in the day, a group of F-86 Saberjets — world's fastest known planes—probably damaged two MIGs in an encounter over an area where at least 34 of the Soviet-type jets had been seen Wednesday.

On the ground, enemy regular and guerrilla groups up to battalion size widened as well as intensified their probing activities, extending them to the eastern seaboard sector.

On the east and in the center of the transpeninsular front, Red patrols stabbed as much as 17 miles below Parallel 38, the artificial border between North and South Korea.

Accelerated Strikes

Similar accelerated patrol strikes were carried out on the west wing of the Eight Army's line, where Chinese units knifed within 27 miles north of Seoul, South Korea's half-depopulated capital.

MacArthur's Headquarters declared that the "major" character of Red China's interventions is "only too apparent in the deployment" of all or important parts of Gen. Chen Yi's Third and Gen. Lin Piao's Fourth field armies in Korea.

The intelligence summary said these "represent two out of the five field armies constituting the entire military structure of China."

The announcement quoted "reliable sources" as disclosing that Mao Tse-Tung's Peiping government had assigned eight billion dollars for war expenditures in 1951. It called this "probably the biggest military budget in Chinese history."

Seek To Conquer Korea

The statement termed the apparent hCinese Red objective of conquering all Korea the "major" current goal of China's colossal war machine.

It listed 277,173 Chinese troops as being aligned at springboard assault positions, with another 350,000 poised in reserve in North Korea.

There was no immediate explanation of how headquarters had arrived at such a precise figure in estimating the Chinese armed forces on the Korean front.

The summary identified six route armies within Lin Piao's Fourth and six within Chen Yi's Third field armies committed to the Korean War.

It said there were reports, "not fully confirmed," that four full Chinese route armies and elements of two others are already in Korea or entering the country from Manchuria.

A Chinese route army is roughly equivalent to an American army corps.

The intelligence summary identified six Chinese Red groups of 23,000 to 29,000 each in the sectors northwest, north and northeast of Seoul. These were only some of the Chinese units now lined up for the expected huge assault.

Poised Above Kaesong

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway's Eighth Army identified the Chinese 39th route army as poised just north of Kaesong and another Chinese force south of that South Korean frontier hub.

Kaesong is 35 miles northwest of Seoul and two miles below the parallel. It lies on Korea's main rail-highway route which runs all the way from Sinuiju, on the Manchurian Yalu river border, southeast through Pyongyang and Seoul down to Pusan at the southeast tip of the peninsula.

China's 38th route army was among the enemy forces identified as assembled in an area 35 miles due north of Seoul and just above the parallel.

Each such Chinese Army consists of three divisions which vary in strength from 7,000 to 10,000 men each.

Delayed field advices, reported by the Eight Army spokesman Thursday, told of sharp patrol clashes Tuesday with Red units, including Chinese, near Korangpo. The latter lies on the Imjin river 27 miles north of Seoul.

An eighth Army patrol flushed out a Red battalion in a village on the Imjin's south bank and was compelled to withdraw because of the enemy's numerical superiority.

A year ago today, the mercury actually soared to a high of 58 degrees above and never dipped below the 31 degree mark at any time during the 24-hour period.

With winter but seven days old, local residents are wondering just what is in store for them come January and February, the normally two colder months of the year.

Youth Dies After Being Found In Auto Near Ellwood

William Bell Beitzel, age 16, Ellwood City, R. D. 1, died at 10:30 a.m. today in the Ellwood City hospital of carbon monoxide poisoning, having been found unconscious by Robert Hawk, at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday in his car on a road near the Harmony Baptist church, which leads off the New Castle-Ellwood City road, according to Acting Coroner Dean Smith.

According to the acting coroner, Beitzel had taken Hawk home shortly after midnight Tuesday. While driving to his home, his car slid into a ditch.

He tried to put on chains. However, his hands got cold, and got into the car to get warm. Beitzel turned on the heater and carbon monoxide fumes overcame him.

About 7:30 a.m. Wednesday Hawk discovered Beitzel unconscious in the car and he was taken to the Ellwood City hospital, where he died today.

William Beitzel was born at Mars, Pa., May 27, 1934, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Arzene Beitzel.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Patton Funeral Home, Ellwood City, by Rev. E. J. Moss of the Harmony Baptist church, of which the boy was a member.

MIDWEST GETS RELIEF FROM ZERO WAVE

from minus 31 to 15 degrees above zero.

The wind will make Chicago warmer, too—but to most of the city's shivering residents it will feel colder.

The weather bureau said the mercury is rising from a low of 10.1 degrees below to a high of 27 above. But because there was almost no wind at all yesterday, the report added, it did not feel as cold as it will today, when the city is buffeted by 20 to 30 mile an hour gusts.

No new push of cold air was forecast for the midwest although a minor storm may bring light snow to North Dakota and parts of Wisconsin.

In the south, a newly-formed blanket of clouds shielded the area from Tennessee to Texas and south to the gulf from further cold.

Nashville, Tenn., reported a rise from 17 degrees above zero to 32; Savannah, Ga., from 28 to 32. Knoxvill, Tenn., registered 26 degrees above and the mercury is expected to rise during the day.

In Richmond, Va., however—north of the cloud belt—it was a chilly 19 above at an early morning hour.

PATRICIA STITZINGER WEDS DAVID SMITH

Dignity and loveliness combined to create the perfect baekground for the impressive rite which united the lives of Miss Patricia Ann Stitzinger and David Jamison Smith on Wednesday, December 27, in the Epworth Methodist church.

The beauty of the ceremony was further enhanced by pine trees and glowing tapers in branched candelabra at the altar. The popular young couple repeated their vows at 4 o'clock, with Rev. Albert Howe officiating at the double ring ceremony before a host of friends and relatives of the principals.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne D. Stitzinger of 206 Clen-Moore boulevard, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith of Painesville, Ohio.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the regal brunette bride was attired in a gown of gleaming slipper satin, with the molded bodice enriched by imported rose point lace and satin. Tiny satin buttons from the dainty lace collar to the waistline further dramatized the bodice. Floating tiers of the full skirt extended to form a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil, which cascaded from a Juliet cap which had been worn by her sister, Nancy Comstock, was a cloud of silk illusion. White mums, Stevia, and white roses made up her bouquet, completing the ensemble.

Miss Mary Martin of Indiana, Pa., attended the bride as maid of honor, wearing a gown of bayberry green slipper satin, fashioned with a delicate low round neckline and bertha collar. A matching braided satin headdress was enhanced with tiny silver, red and green balls on the right side, and she carried a bouquet of white poinsettias.

Bridesmaids included Miss Ann Shewman of New Castle and Cleveland, and Miss Nancy Hoffman of New Kensington and New York. Miss Virginia Tuttle of Painesville, Ohio, was the junior bridesmaid. Each young lady was gowned in bayberry green slipper satin styled like that worn by the maid of honor. Matching braided green satin headdresses with silver, red and green balls were worn by the attendants. Red poinsettias were carried by the bridesmaids, while holly red carnations made up Miss Tuttle's bouquet.

Petite Lynne Stitzinger wore a white slipper satin gown with a dainty bertha collar. Tiny buttons added back interest to the creation, and a white sash and white ribbons on her hair were pretty accents. She carried holly red carnations.

Sam Poxen of Painesville, Ohio, served the groom as best man. Ushers included George K. Stitzinger, brother of the bride; William C. Comstock, brother-in-law of the bride; and Clark Burwell, friend of the groom, from Painesville, Ohio.

Mrs. J. M. Pyle, organist, played "Holy, Holy, Holy" for the processional and Beethoven's Recessional. She accompanied Miss Marilyn Close of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, as she sang "O Perfect Love," "Give Me Your Hand," and "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Epworth Methodist church immediately following the ceremony. Mrs. G. G. Stitzinger, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Edward Mitchell of McDonald, O.; Mrs. Allen Tuttle, Painesville, O.; and Mrs. E. L. Stitzinger of New Castle, poured. A buffet supper was served to the out-of-town guests and the couple's friends at the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds later departed for a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination.

The bride is a senior at Lake Erie college, Painesville, Ohio. The groom, a graduate of Ohio State university, enlisted in the Air Corps and is attending Radar school, Kessler Field, Biloxi, Miss. Until he enlisted, Mr. Smith was affiliated with the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The rehearsal was held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, after which Mr. and Mrs. Norman Nelson served a luncheon to the bridal party.

An impressive holiday wedding united the lives of Miss Isilia Illibati and Armando Aven on Saturday, December 23 at 2:30 o'clock. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Illibati, Todd avenue, Ellwood City, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Rose Parillo, East Brook street, New Castle.

The couple exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, with Rev. James Lipiano of the Italian Christian Church of God, New Castle, officiating. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Lydia Grognale, Beaver Falls, sang several nuptial selections and Miss Ruth Grognale, also of Beaver Falls, entertained with selections at the piano.

The bride was attractive in a gown of white satin, embroidered with white roses. It featured a full tunic with scalloped edging, a scalloped neckline, and cathedral train. A band of white satin rose petals, dotted with seed pearls, caught up her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a white Bible, topped with an orchid and lily-of-the-valley streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Mangogna, Brooklyn, N. Y., were the only attendants. Mrs. Mangogna wore a gown of gold satin, trimmed with lace, and complimented by a gold satin calot. She carried an orchid on a wedding ring frame.

Dinner was served to the bridal party at a hotel in New Castle and a reception was held from 7 to 9 o'clock in the Immanuel Reformed church.

The young couple will reside in Bridgeport, Conn., following a honeymoon in Miami, Fla.

FLORENCE MORGAN WEDS JACK McCOY

White net and satin featured the bridal attire worn by Miss Florence Jean Morgan for her marriage to Pfc. Jack Byron McCoy Tuesday, December 26.

The young couple repeated their solemn wedding vows in the First United Presbyterian church at 7 o'clock, with Rev. Robert H. Mayo officiating at the impressive double ring ceremony. Palms and ferns decorated the altar for the lovely candlelight rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Morgan, 311 Elizabeth street, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Ruth D. McCoy, 227 Park avenue.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, Richard, the youthful bride appeared in a gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and dainty lace yoke. Two panels of lace extended from the yoke to the hemline and long fitted sleeves came to points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt was styled of net over satin. A crown of pearls and rhinestones held her fingertip veil of net and she carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid. The traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue was observed by the bride.

Mrs. James Herr attended the bride as matron of honor wearing with charm a gown of blue net over satin, trimmed with lace. Style notes of the snug bodice were its lace yoke and short sleeves. Matching hat and mitts were additional accents of the ensemble and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Bridesmaid for the occasion was Miss Marjorie Lindsey, who was attired in a gown of rose satin. A matching hat and mitts were pretty compliments of the gown, and a bouquet of yellow roses was carried by Miss Lindsey.

Walter McCoy served the groom as best man, while Richard Koonce and Robert Mitchell ushered.

NEW JOB FOR SENATOR MYERS?

Washington sources are speculating strongly that Sen. Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania, defeated for re-election by Gov. James Duff, stands a good chance of becoming the next Democratic national chairman, succeeding present party chieftain William Boyle.

It is anticipated that Boyle will retire shortly because of poor health and a strong faction of Democrats in Congress is hopeful Myers will land the post.

Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin is also in the running.

Should Myers fail to take the party chairmanship, it is anticipated he can land a job on the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is believed that President Truman would offer him the chance to fill the first ICC vacancy that occurs.

Another defeated administration Senate boss, Majority Leader Scott Lucas has announced his intention of returning to his law practice in Illinois but he is not being counted out as a candidate for a government job.

Lucas recently conferred at the White House on a "personal matter" but refused to disclose whether he was offered a Washington job. It's possible he may wind up on a diplomatic assignment.

"LEND-LEASE" PROGRAM MISSING

Thus far in the defense mobilization program, nothing similar to World War II's Lend-Lease program has been hinted by administration officials and apparently nothing is being considered along such lines in the immediate future.

While Washington is watching an organizational growth similar to the World War II pattern of controls, production, bottlenecks, manpower shortages and other problems, Lend-Lease hasn't made an official appearance.

The nearest thing to it is the present military assistance program by which the United States is supplying limited quantities of military equipment to North Atlantic Pact Allies.

World War II Lend-Lease was much broader than this however inasmuch as the program then resulted in the shipment of clothing, food, industrial equipment, ships, railroads and almost every conceivable item.

Officials concede that should a more rapid military build-up of our Allies be required, a new version of Lend-Lease may become necessary.

They point out that to mobilize the full production potential of such countries as Britain and France, it would be necessary to provide them with food, clothing, shipping and industrial equipment to stabilize their domestic economies under the burden of military output.

However, in the light of mistakes attributed to the Lend-Lease program in the last conflict, the administration and Congress is maintaining a "go-slow, wait-and-see" attitude to such a vast step.

Only in the event of an all-out war with Russia and the Communist world would they favor reinstituting the supply program.

WHAT PRICE PERISHABLES?

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D) Louisana, who will head the Senate Agriculture Committee in the new Congress, indicates that his group will make a detailed study of ways and means to stop the tremendous government losses in supporting prices of perishable commodities.

Thus far, Ellender has given no details except to say that the program worked out will not be along the lines of the pro-production payment scheme proposed by Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan—the now thoroughly repudiated Brannan plan.

However, a large part of the immediate problem has been taken out of Congress' hands.

The Agriculture Department has announced that there will be no price supports on eggs next year and probably will do the same for potatoes. Surpluses of these two commodities have been the major cause of the government's staggering losses on perishables.

Ellender contends that unless some acceptable formula is found the whole price support program may collapse. Outside the field of perishables, he thinks the support program is working well and can be continued as is.

'Scottish Home Rule'

Theft of the famous old stone of Scone from its place of honor in London's Westminster Abbey served today to point up that curious factor in Britain's national life known as Scottish home rule.

It is curious because the mere expression home rule indicates at least a desire for secession, while that word implies that Scotland is being held by force and duress by the British crown.

Such is hardly the case. The people of Scotland presumably could vote themselves out of their proud position in the British commonwealth if they wanted to. But the "home rulers" or nationalists are not more than a small if somewhat noisy minority. There seems to be no general desire to eliminate Scotland from the United Kingdom.

Much Deflated

Much of the wind was taken out of nationalist sails when King George VI ascended the throne 13 years ago.

For his queen is a Scotswoman to the core. Princess Elizabeth, who will succeed to the throne, is therefore half Scotch, with some of the proudest blood of the highlands in her veins and as long as the line prevails, the chain of geneological links to Scotland will not be broken.

There apparently is some real concern in London, however, lest the daring if foolhardy theft of Britain's most famous relic arouse national fanatics to something more than an occasional bagpipe-led parade of Tartans, kilts and sporrans.

It is undoubtedly true that the Scottish nationalists have used every breakup in the British Empire to make effective propaganda for their cause.

This was the case when the British mandate in Palestine was surrendered, and applied also to the separation of Burma, India and other portions of the commonwealth that have dropped away.

Fuel Is Provided

Establishment of the Republic of Ireland, formerly Eire, provided fuel for the nationalist flames. But until the present, these have all been teapot tempests.

Whether there ever could be a separation of Scotland from the United Kingdom is problematical at best.

The two countries have such close economic and financial ties that the union seems unbreakable. England depends heavily on the ship-building yards of the Clyde; Scotland is surely well represented in the London marts of commerce. It is a saying that in every large British mercantile establishment, Britain supplies the workers and Scotland sends down the directors to work for handsome salaries.

And the numerous resort proprietors of Scotland, to say nothing of the managements of world famous golf clubs, have every reason to be happy that there is no "impassable" border along the tweed. For many months out of the year, Britons are the principal paying guests. And in better times, the wealthy Englishman who did not have a hunting lodge or the lease of a grouse-shooting moor in Scotland was not deemed worthy of the name.

Signed Covenant

The more moderate element of the home rule faction, numbering about 2 million Scotsmen, signed a covenant last year.

While this was entirely an all-Scottish affair, it is noteworthy that the signers pledged full loyalty to King George and his heirs and merely asked his majesty's government to consider a larger degree of self-government for Scotland.

Thus there is obviously a great deal of difference between this movement and the politics of Eire, which not only broke all ties with the British throne but ardently desires to annex the northern counties.

That is a matter that day in and day out is one for violent agitation. The southern Irelanders are always ready with vast bundles of pamphlets and charts designed to prove that a mere handful of "king's men" are keeping millions of Irishmen in servitude to the crown.

In much the same respect, New Year's Eve may prove to be a lively time in London.

That is the holiday on which thousands of Scots traditionally visit the capital, downing much of the excellent whisky they make and hold so very well.

Fanatics who do not hesitate to steal Britain's most venerable relic from their most sacred shrine must indeed be a resolute and determined people.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CHILDREN SHOULD HELP AT HOME

Some parents dwell so long and often on the temporary small problems they think they have in bringing up their children that they seldom muse on the numerous great successes and their many joyous moments in the family. "I have enjoyed some part of every day that I have been a mother," writes the mother of two daughters aged 12 and seven, and a son aged 18 months.

"We live a happy life with our children, playing games, reading to them, and fishing and picnicking in the summer.

Bedtime Story

"Our youngsters have always gone to bed at a certain time, were rocked and played with at certain times during the day, but never rocked to sleep at bedtime. We always read them a story or two at bedtime.

"However, I don't mean to give you the impression that our children are perfect, and that our home is without problems. For example, the daughter that is 12 doesn't help me as much as I feel she should. I would like her to do things for me willingly, perhaps because she feels I'm unusually tired, and not because she won't get her allowance.

"The seven-year-old daughter presents problems of a different nature. Whereas the older one is very pleasant, the younger one is inclined to pout and fuss a lot, with a tendency toward selfishness. She doesn't enjoy eating, but eats enough as she is very active and healthy. Yet both are very good students at school, get practically straight 'A's' and love school. The older one is in the band and orchestra, both belong to Girl Scouts and have lots of friends.

"The son presents the usual temporary problems of a baby his age, but is a healthy, happy, lovable little fellow.

"I wonder as I think of these little difficulties from day to day, if they are the usual problems or have I failed, or still do I expect too much of our children? You'll never know how much I have relied on your articles. You seem to mix just the right amount of love and kindness with common sense. We have no trouble loving them, but it takes lots of patience and common sense to make happy well-adjusted adults of them.

"I would appreciate your 'A Parent's Prayer' and the pamphlet on thumb-sucking."

Not Serious Problems

The requested bulletins were enclosed in this mothers' self-addressed, stamped envelope. Virtually as follows I wrote her: The tone of your letter makes me believe your problems are not serious. If I were you, I would not use the older girl's allowance to force her to help you about the house. Instead, you should require a few regular jobs of her which she can't escape and have no arguments over them. If a penalty is necessary make her sit doing nothing for 40 minutes instead of her doing the particular job, repeating this procedure until she chooses to do the job regularly. Thus you can avoid jawing and irritations and train her in responsibility. My bulletin, "How To Teach the Child to Help at Home," may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me at 235 East 45th street, New York, N. Y.

See that the younger daughter does not impose on the older or have her own way. Be sure she also has a few regular definite jobs. See that the jobs and possessions of these girls don't overlap.

Anyway, your joyous feelings toward your parenthood and your general family happiness should do most to help you deal with these problems which are relatively small in comparison with your total happy family picture.

Just Folks

JUST ONE LAST PUFF

Father quit smoking the first of the year,
Put up his pipes as he uttered his vow:
"Mother," he'd say, "get these things out of here.
Just one last puff, and I'm taking it now!"

"Just one last puff, then forever no more.
Meerschaum or briar or bowl made of clay."
Mother just smiled. She had heard him before:
"Just one last puff and then put them away."

Father believed that he meant what he said,
But peevish and petulant strangely he grew.
Sharply he'd order us children to bed.
Mother just smiled for the reason she knew.

"You've gone without smoking she'd say, "long enough.
Cross words in this home we don't like to hear.
So fill up your pipe! You can take that last puff
Once more when we come to the end of the year."

From Me To You

By MESEEALL

Can't understand it . . . why so many people are so vitally interested in the private lives of others. Personally we can't stomach all the stories that are used concerning the "change-of-mates" as practiced by the screen stars. If Shirley Temple can't get along with a husband and wants to change or vice-versa . . . what difference does it make. And Liz Taylor fights from the first week of her honeymoon . . . so what. It so happens both parties mentioned are just "kids" . . . eighteen or so . . . what could they possibly know about the job of married life . . . and being married is a job . . . and being married only works if both parties really work at making it work . . . Like a job that puts bread and butter on our tables.

* * *

So why all this talk . . . today the talk concerns the ex-wife of F. D. R. Jr., who cares about junior or his ex-wife . . . Who cares? Why millions of people care and that's why the newspapers and radio commentators tell the story . . . And if you doubt that just go around and take your own survey . . . and while you are at it take a look at the books and magazines that people buy.

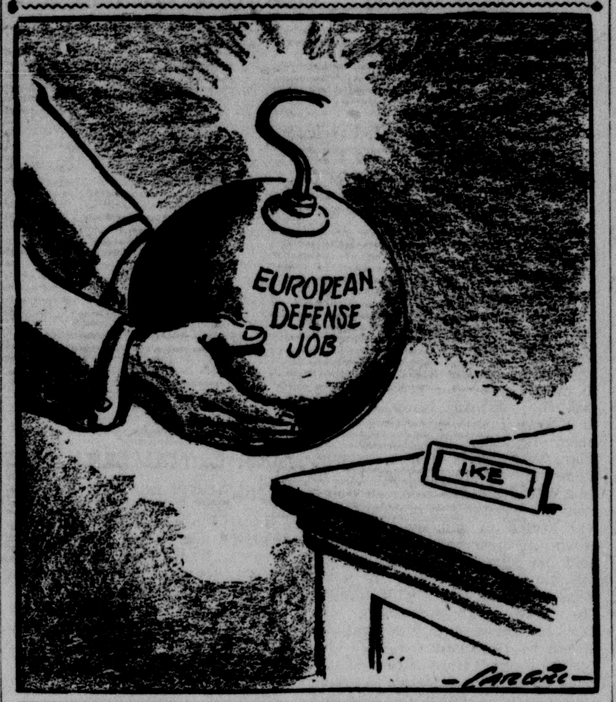

* * *

Most hospitals today have a gift store . . . and with this set up . . . a volunteer or an employee of the hospital take gifts and magazines around to the patients . . . What type of magazine is sold . . . well, we know that the patients on the maternity floor buy Love Stories . . . five to one . . . and that both men and women patients read and reread the movie magazines.

* * *

Some people like the publicity . . . others don't . . . for there are many who fail at marriage and do all within their power to keep the word as quiet as possible . . . Well, we've said our piece . . . and you can say yours . . . Thank goodness this is still the United States of America.

APPLE FOR THE TEACHER

Washington Calling

(By MARQUIS CHILDS)

Europe's Reaction To Hoover

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 — The word appeasement is acquiring a more and more uncertain connotation. Herbert Hoover made generous use of it in his talk on foreign policy, suggesting that the wartime conferences at Teheran and Yalta were forms of appeasement.

The conference at Teheran was concerned almost entirely with military decision. In hindsight, and in the light of military intelligence not then available, the decisions taken at Yalta appear to have made needless concessions to the Soviet Union. But it is important to remember that both Churchill and Roosevelt were acting in the belief that some sort of peaceful relationship with Russia could be achieved in the post-war world.

Right through Teheran and Yalta down to the present, the western nations have shown an unfailing readiness to cooperate for peace. This gives the West today a position of great moral strength which is too often ignored or discounted.

Last June after seeing Stalin in Moscow, the United Nations Secretary General, Trygve Lie, proposed a 10-point long range peace plan. Communists around the world immediately championed it, with the New York "Daily Worker" accusing Secretary of State Acheson of rejecting it because of "a refusal to have peace under any conditions whatever."

What's Happened Since?

But what has happened since? A month ago the U. N. General Assembly adopted a resolution approving Lie's peace plan. This, as the Wilmington (Del.) Morning News pointed out in a recent editorial, is the same plan, word-for-word and comma-for-comma, that the Communist press has been ballyhooing and, accusing the United States of opposing.

Who voted against it? Soviet Russia and the four other Iron Curtain members of the U. N. Russia's Jacob Malik even went so far as to charge that the Lie plan was hatched by the British, French and American governments.

To seek peace is not appeasement. But it is appeasement to surrender what one is pledged both by principle and promise to defend. And that, it seems to me, is what Mr. Hoover has done. What he proposes is that the United States abandon Western Europe to create a sort of Gibraltar in the United States.

Profoundly Unsettling

News dispatches since the speech have told how profoundly unsettling this has been to Europeans, and certainly that should surprise no one. The line taken by Mr. Hoover and others who speak like him provides one side of the vise in which the hope for Western Europe is being squeezed out of existence.

The other side of that vise is, of course, supplied by Communist Russia. Very shortly, perhaps even before this can appear in print, the Soviet Union is expected to renounce its treaties with France and Great Britain. Already Moscow has warned that the plan to re-arm Western Europe, including Germany, is a violation of those treaties.

But when they are formally renounced, Europe is certain to feel a new wave of fear. It is the kind of step that has traditionally preceded an act of war.

Implies Attack Near

Russia implies that an attack is imminent. Mr. Hoover has intimated to West Europeans that they are incapable of defending themselves and that therefore America must retire across the sea. As these two sides of the vise close in, nothing is left but despair and futility.

One thing this does is to make General Eisenhower's job more difficult. It was difficult enough before, heaven knows! But Eisenhower was willing to tackle it because, along with most military men, he understands that Western Europe is important to the defense of the United States.

That is true certainly at this stage of our military preparation when so large a share of our defense is predicted on strategic air power. The new B-47 jet bomber that is beginning to come into production is considered by all those pushing its production to be far in advance of anything anywhere. But there must be bases on the other side of the Atlantic for the B-47 to operate most effectively.

Ignored Swift Progress

When Mr. Hoover talked about using Britain as a possible bastion, he ignored the swift progress of technology in warfare. With the continent of Europe in control of hostile powers, the British Isles would be subject to attack from the new and greatly improved guided missiles that make the V-1s and the V-2s of the last war look pretty old-fashioned. Under bombardment from these new weapons, it would be difficult or impossible to sustain any military operation of size.

Significantly, many of those now counselling retreat were also saying in 1939 and 1940 that France and Britain could not be defended from the Nazis. The threat this time is greater than it was a decade ago. But those who counselled despair and defeatism the last time were wrong, and they could be wrong again.

One Man's Opinion

By Walter Kiernan

Four per cent of the persons in the country have two automobiles and from the looks of the highways they're driving them side by side in one lane.

My advice to anyone who plans to drive on New Year's Eve is to see your psychiatrist twice a day until Tuesday.

The Christmas weekend was about as disastrous a little traffic weekend as we've had in history and the real lucky communities were those that were snowbound.

But while we're in resolution mood we might make that one that goes "I will not drive if I have been drinking" . . . And if that one doesn't work substitute "I will not drive."

Anyway the Federal Reserve Board says 50 prcent of our citizens now own automobiles . . . The other 50 per cent apparently ride in the back seat.

So can someone explain why if 50 per cent of the people own automobiles there are always four in the front seat of a hot rod and eight in the back?

At 11 years of age he played the organ in the family church; at 12 he played the piano at his home town theater, and at 15 was conductor of the theater's orchestra. At 17 he became conductor of a theater orchestra in New York. "Broadway Brevities of 1920," George White's "Scandals," "The Right Girl," "Rain or Shine," and five editions of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" are among the shows he conducted. World Ready For U. N.?

(By HOLMES ALEXANDER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 28.—Blamesgiving about the Korean disaster is not exclusively an All American affair between Democrats and Republicans—a number of foreign spokesmen are also getting in their licks.

The criticism—mostly from British and Indian sources—is polite, restrained and give more in sorrow than in anger. But it is thoroughgoing and thought-provoking. We should be able to learn something from it.

Basically, the complaint is that the three things we tried to carry to Korea by force of arms—unity, freedom and democracy—were the wrong things. The Korean campaign, it is said, should have been based on three other things—the Asiatic desires for nationalism, a redistribution of land and continental isolation.

Mistake To Cross 38th Parallel

It was this mistake, it is said, that caused us to cross the 38th parallel and drive for the Manchurian border. A far better move would have been to stop after the capture of Seoul and to use diplomacy, even at the price of making some deals with the Korean Reds. The very best thing we could have done was to crush the Communist invasion of South Korea and then return to Japan from whence our intervention was launched.

Now if we examine it closely, this critique strikes hard at the whole concept of world government which America has supported under the UN Charter. Internationalism is the keystone of this concept, not nationalism. Law and order will not permit taking land from landlords and giving it to peasants. The very term "police action" implies a roving commission for UN forces to intervene against aggression, even if that intervention violates the desire of a country to be left alone.

"Then U.N. Is Not For Asia"

If it is true that Asia desires nationalism, redistribution of land and isolation, then the UN is not for Asia.

Is that what the Anglo-Indian criticism means? There is good reason to believe that it does. Prime Minister Nehru, who ought to know, has pointedly invited the white man of the West to keep out of Asia. Great Britain, with long experience in the Orient, is diplomatically supporting Red China against the Chiang Kai-shek government, which is a UN member. This is being done on the Old World theory that empires rise and fall by armed might. It is a far cry from the high idealism which was supposed to establish a Brave New World of democratic rule. Speaking last month in Chicago, the British Ambassador clearly stated his country's viewpoint:

"In Britain we are not under any delusions about the Chinese Communists. We believe them to be Communists in belief and in practice. We do not think that they and their government are something masquerading in disguise . . . In our view, diplomatic recognition of a country does not involve either approval or disapproval. It is simply a question of fact."

At Odds With American Viewpoint

But this is so much at odds with the American viewpoint that it constitutes a renunciation of American leadership. It also falls perfectly into the British criticism of our Korean decisions with which they went along somewhat unwillingly. It would be foolish of us not to perceive that our struggle to make a world-ruling body out of the UN has lost support during the year that is just closing. America is much more alone in the world than we sometimes know. And, within our own country, the global thinkers are much more discredited by events than they seem willing to admit.

Perhaps it is not too late to reverse the trend that seems to be making us isolationists in spite of ourselves. We have done very little to exert the authority that we could exert over nations we support and protect. We have not laid down the simple principle that we can withdraw from the UN if it ceases to fulfill its purposes as stated in the Charter. It may very well be that the UN is a project for which the rest of the world is not ready. If that is true, we had better find out now than later.

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

An eight-column headline appeared on top of page one of my morning paper.

"YANKS BATTLE CHINA REDS IN SNOWSTORM WITH SOME TROOPS BREAKING THROUGH TRAP"

The story tells of the desperate battle for life which our boys are fighting. There are many killed, many wounded. More will die, more will be wounded.

It is one of the darkest moments in our history.

Right under that headline was a picture with this caption:

"ATTLEE AND TRUMAN IN JOVIAL MOOD."

"President Truman and British Prime Minister Clement Attlee flash smiles as they pose for pictures at the President's White House office desk."

The picture shows both of these gentlemen grinning in happy glee—looking smug, contented, satisfied—as if they had just eaten a large dinner at which they were notified of a glorious victory.

You probably saw that same picture in your own paper, or in the movies.

Probably you, too, were wondering what these two great statesmen had to laugh about.

Were they possibly laughing at you and me?

On the same page appeared another picture.

It showed a little girl with tears in her eyes. The caption said: "Little Pamela Lord cries in her crib for her Afghan hound, Abdullah, missing six days from her home in Los Angeles."

Since then the dog has returned. But during all the six days he was away little Pamela, 17 months old, refused to eat and had to be fed intravenously.

As soon as Abdullah came home, Pamela ate and was all right again.

I wonder which one of these two pictures would have appealed to you more.

By the time this column appears in print I hope the outlook in Korea and other danger spots will have changed for the better.

I sincerely hope that we will have bungled ourselves out of our predicament, just as we have bungled ourselves out of others that happened before.

But will we have learned our lesson this time?

Or will we be the same self-satisfied, happy-go-lucky, boasting suckers forever?

The trouble with us is that we are still a bunch of children.

We have had it too easy.

Nature has been too kind to us.

Our country has never been ravaged, blasted, bombed, raped. Not a single bomb has ever touched one of our buildings or even scratched one of our homes.

One can't condemn the Europeans for not wanting another war. Attlee knows what war can do to a country; Truman ought to know.

So what in h—l are they grinning about?

How To Make Your Glassware Shine

FORT COLLINS.—(INS)—You have to fuss over your crystalware like it was a rich relation if you want a sparkling glass menagerie for holiday banquets.

A home furnishing specialist at Colorado A. & M. college, Fort Collins, drops some crystal-clear hints about making glassware shine when you dine.

For the bath, dunk crystal in warm, light suds or mild soap. And no fast switch from hot to cold water. Crystalware doesn't like it either. A little bluing in the rinse water gives an extra sheen.

And so you won't be chipping your teeth about chipped crystalware, here's some well-padded suggestions:

When washing the dishes, put a cloth or rubber mat in the bottom of the dishpan or sink. Crystal plates scratch easily, too. To make sure you're stacking them in a scratch-proof way, insert sheets of tissue between the plates.

No bottoms up for goblets, either, just in case you have any old mottos cluttering up the kitchen. Chipping is much less likely if gobblets or sherbets are stored rims up. Also, leave plenty of space between each one in the cupboard.

Or, if you want to join the ultra-conservative wing of the crystalware set, put rubber mats on the cupboard shelves. That guarantees no slipping—of the goblets—or of your reputation as a holiday hostess.

The amount of salt in the world's oceans is enough to cover the United States with a layer a mile and a half deep, it is estimated.

Tired Of Austerity, Men Go Off On Hunt

LONDON.—(INS)—Four young men, tired of Britain's austerity, have gone to India and Burma to seek big game which they hope to bring back alive.

Their pockets are stuffed with $56,000 worth of orders for wild elephants, tigers and rhinos. The British Zoological Gardens and the Medical Research Council are the biggest customers.

Watler Hughes, Brighton accountant and former Gurkha major, is the leader of the party. Only he and Gordon Baber, a builder, have had experience of big game hunting—in India during the war.

The remainder of the party are Thomas Patterson, trucking contractor who lost his business by nationalization, and Edwin Lonsdale, farmer.

Their first trip will last six months. Next year they will return for another six months, and then visit Central America in 1952. Patterson said:

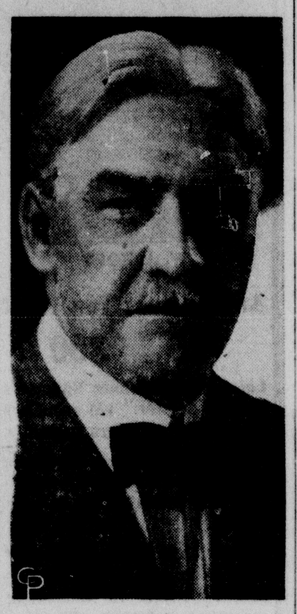

"I'm looking forward to some excitement. The government's nationalization policy has closed down my trucking business, so I have to make my future elsewhere.

"We have orders for at least 30 tigers, and the Medical Research Council wants us to send them 100 monkeys a month for experimental purposes.

"When we come home next March we'll spend three months delivering the animals. They always get used to those who capture them, and we want to make sure they settle down."

A gift exchange brought the program to a close.

Hostesses for the Christmas party will also act as hostesses on January 31, the next regular meeting.

LAYING FLOCKS DOWN FROM THE PAST YEAR

Egg production has been breaking records in both Pennsylvania and the nation.

Laying flocks on January 1, 1951, are expected to be about 2 per cent less than a year ago. A larger proportion of old hens will be in the laying flocks during the coming season than is usual. In 1950 the government bought more than 6 per cent of the total egg production for support purposes. In 1951 there will be no support program.

For the first half of 1951, egg production is expected to be in excess of demand. Prices during this period may not be too favorable. Prices during the last half of the year may be improved, especially if flock replacements are down.

Poultry meat supplies and cold storage holdings are large now. Later improvement in prices may develop if red meat consumption increases as expected.

PROLONG TREE LIFE THROUGH PROPER CARE

Trees may get sick and not last long if untreated. But proper care will prolong their life span and thus increase their economic or decorative value.

Some of the most common, and important, diseases of trees, together with the best control measures, are described in a 34-page mimeograph prepared by extension plant pathologists of the Pennsylvania State College.

A copy of the mimeograph, just received by the Agricultural Extension Office, New Castle, is available for reference. It explains common diseases of trees in the forest, in tree nurseries, and in shade and ornamental plantings.

Tree diseases may be caused by bacteria, fungi, viruses, and even functional troubles, such as winter injury, sun scorch, or harmful chemicals.

Toscanini Plans To Return To Podium

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—The National Broadcasting Company said today that Arturo Toscanini will end his long absence from the podium of the NBC Symphony Orchestra on Jan. 27.

The network also confirmed that "at the maestro's request" the program will be moved back to its original broadcast time of Saturdays at 6:30 p.m. (EST) and will originate from Carnegie Hall instead of the Manhattan Center.

The official reason given for Toscanini's absence was recurrence of an old knee injury. NBC said he now has recovered sufficiently to resume the baton. The 83-year-old maestro has not appeared since the end of last season.

The Jan. 27th program will be a benefit performance in honor of the death of Verdi and will start half an hour earlier, at 6 p.m. (EST). It will consist of Verdi's "Requiem." Tickets will be sold, and the proceeds will go to the Casa Verdi, the home for aged musicians in Milan, Italy, which Verdi founded and endowed in his will.

NBC also said that Toscanini is eager to take the orchestra on another tour of the United States next spring.

Foreign Policy Debate To Dominate Next Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(INS)—Leading Senate Democrats and Republicans agreed today that foreign policy debate will dominate the stage of the coming 82nd Congress and call the tune on domestic legislation.

Sen. Douglas (D) Ill., said that it will be impossible to draw a line between foreign and domestic issues for "everything will stem from what we do about" the global crisis.

Senate Republican Floor Leader Wherry, Neb., in naming foreign policy as the dominate issue, said:

Character Of Aid

"The big question will be the character of the mutual aid we extend in connection with the North Atlantic Act and the defining of our perimeter in the Pacific.

"From this gigantic debate and its culmination will depend what we do on domestic legislation.

"We will have to weigh the availability of American dollars and manpower if we are to maintain that (Pacific) perimeter and extend aid to Europe.

"Domestic legislation will result from the impact of the war on the economy of the people. A good many people will be dislocated as we move into total mobilization."

Douglas said that three schools of thought will be presented in the new Congress, convening January 3.

First, he said, there is the school which believes this country should help block aggression "anywhere in the world." Members of this school urge strong action in the Pacific as well as in Europe to halt communism.

A second group, Douglas said, believes in concentrating the nation's effort in stopping aggression in Europe providing "the European countries join us." Members of this group want free Europe to do more toward its own defenses.

The other school, Douglas said, believes the "situation is hopeless and we should retire behind our own shores."

Douglas said that it is "obvious" the Brannan Farm Plan is dead as far as the new Congress is concerned.

He said it is equally obvious that the President's Civil Rights program has no chance of approval.

The Senator explained:

"If we couldn't pass the civil rights program in the present 81st Congress, it is certain we cannot do it in the next Congress when those of us who favor it are smaller in number."

Douglas declared that mobilization and rearmament will produce a great demand for farm products and "do away with the need for the Brannan Plan."

SHADES OF WPA

SALT LAKE CITY. — The city parks commission turned over a bass fiddle to a group of amateur singers. The instrument had been collecting dust since the 1930s. It had not been used since a WPA orchestra was disbanded.

Politics Mixes With Marriage

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Marriage is apparently a great help to a girl with political ambitions.

At any rate, there's only one spinster among the nine women who will serve in the eighty-second Congress come January. She, of course, is Ruth Thompson, a Republican, who will represent the ninth district of Michigan.

The other eight women in Congress are all either wives or widows. All but two are mothers as well. The two exceptions are Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts.

Most of the Congresswomen-elect have made plans to leave their husbands and families at home when they come to Washington for the next session. This decision is partly dictated by the demands of the husband's work.

Only three of the new congresswomen have younger children to worry about. Of these, Representative Reva Beck Bosone of Utah will probably have her 19-year-old daughter, Zilpha, with her in the capital.

Representative Edna Kelly of New York plans to leave her 20-year-old son, William and her 16-year-old daughter, Maura, in school in New York, while Representative Marguerite Church of Illinois needs only worry about her youngest child, and only daughter, who'll be away at Wellesley College all year.

All of the congresswomen-elect say that their families' encouragement and help were a big factor in their political success.

HUGE GIRDERS

WHITNEY, Tex. — The backbone of a new bridge over the Brazos River at Whitney, Tex., will be 50 steel girders that have a total weight of almost 6,000,000 pounds. These vertebrae are so big that only three cranes in the country can handle them. When they're shipped, they'll fill a gondola car and lap over almost half the length of flat cars fore and aft.

Kids Going Steady Problem To Parents

NEW YORK — (INS) — Parents can estrange their children or retain their life-long love, depending on the way they behave during the period when the children are "going steady."

The period of going steady, says an article in an issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, should be recognized as "a crisis of a prolonged nature, requiring the most delicate handling."

Written by the mother of two daughters and a son, the article cites a list of suggested "rules" for parents to observe during the critical period. The rules are based upon the author's experience, her mistakes as well as her correct behavior.

"We have always believed," she says, "that going steady is a good thing, a forward step in the freedom of children to develop and learn about life in their own way. Today's children make their own romantic decisions, mostly because they have learned to distinguish the false feelings from the real ones through going steady."

Here are some of the author's "rules for parents:"

No age is too young to be taken seriously and handled with tact. Act accordingly. Encourage your child to bring the object of his affection into the family circle—but don't overdo it. Make as many opportunities as possible to discuss with your child the meaning and responsibilities of marriage. He will be flattered by your confidence, and will do some constructive thinking in private.

Never let your child doubt that you know the choice of a steady is his alone and that you're prepared to stand by him.

HAVE YOU A PUNY CHILD?

HADACOL May Relieve the Cause of Distress that is Dragging Your Child Down

IF DUE TO A LACK OF VITAMINS B_1, B_2, IRON AND NIACIN

You don't want your child to lag behind, be below par, unable to keep up with the other kids. Medical science has verified the fact that a lack of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin in the system can drag children down, cause them to fall behind in their development.

HADACOL the wonderful nutritional formula has been specially compounded to overcome just such deficiencies. Results are what count and mothers are writing us about the help HADACOL has given their children who were suffering from such deficiencies.

James Edgar Johnston

Here is just one example—a letter from Mrs. Edgar L. Johnston, Lake, Mississippi, whose son was suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin. Mrs. Johnston writes: "About two and a half years ago, our little boy, James Edgar had fever, and had to stay in bed for several months. He was so weak. We had to give him liver, and all kinds of food that would build blood. He couldn't run and play. Also his food hurt him. I heard about HADACOL.

"I decided to try it. I could tell a great difference. He has taken fourteen bottles. He is eleven years old, weighs 92 pounds, plays on the school ball team, rides his bike, runs and plays like other boys and feels grand, sleeps all night, without waking. I can never praise HADACOL enough. I have recommended it to all my friends and got them to take it. They are thrilled over finding such a fine product."

If your child, like James Edgar, is rundown, lagging behind because of deficiencies of Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin, why not try HADACOL today. Many doctors recommend it for their patients, for their own families. Trial size bottle, $1.25; large family or hospital size, $3.50. Money-back guarantee.

Farm Extension Group Has Meeting At Court House

Lawrence County Agriculture Extension Service had a meeting last night at the court house, in order to discuss the topic "Should Farmers Be Included in the Federal Social Security Program?"

The purpose was not to make any decision, but to discuss and bring out necessary information on the subject. The group of 12, listened to Dr. Kenneth Hood, Extension Agriculture Economist from State College present both pro and con viewpoints in order to stimulate individual discussion.

Assistant county agent John Holbert has stated that this is only one of several similar meetings scheduled this winter. Jan. 24 and Feb. 28 have been set as dates for future meetings.

U.S. Steel To Build Plant

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The nation's steel industry today headed into a giant defense production program which includes the largest single expansion project ever undertaken by any steel company.

The United States Steel Corp., will build a new, wholly-integrated plant near Morrisville, Pa., at a cost of nearly 400 million dollars and with capacity of 1,800,000 ingot tons of steel a year.

National security resources board authorization for the huge plant was given last night. The cost is $351,414,000 for Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., and $46,631,420 for National Tube Co., both U. S. Steel subsidiaries, which will share the Morrisville plant.

Officials said the new mill will start rising on the banks of the Delaware river, opposite Trenton, N. J., early next spring, with completion scheduled by the end of 1952. The first finished steel products will start rolling from the Morrisville plant within six to 12 months after construction begins.

The plant will be named the Fairless Works, in honor of U. S. Steel President Benjamin F. Fairless.

Sabotage Seen As Grave Danger To U.S. Security

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—Terming sabotage "one of the gravest dangers to our national security," the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company and its two major domestic facilities today revealed protective steps for itself, its employees and their families.

Adopted also to encourage enforcement of existing laws, the plan involves payment of $300,000 in rewards by the three companies.

All rewards are payable for evidence leading to the final conviction of those responsible for crimes of violence in connection with sabotage.

Where there is a deliberate crime of violence arising in connection with sabotage the company and resulting in the death or permanent disability of an employee, $25,000.

When there is deliberate sabotage against the company and resulting in other personal injury to an employee, $10,000.

Where sabotage results in $1,000 or more damage to company property, $2,000.

Up to $5,000 over the amount recoverable from an employee's insurance for property damage stemming from an act of sabotage involving the company.

President To Spend Weekend On Yacht Preparing Message

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—President Truman will spend the New Year's weekend aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg working on his State of the Union message for delivery to the incoming 82nd Congress.

The president will leave Washington tomorrow for what the White House said is an "indefinite" cruise on Chesapeake Bay. He will return in time for his appearance before Congress next week.

The White House said that for "Security Reasons" the time of departure or return of the president to Washington would not be announced.

Press Secretary Joseph Short also announced that the president's annual budget message, which will reflect the need for much higher taxes, will be delayed in its presentation to Congress this year by about two weeks.

However, he stated that the firm had resumed the wholesaling of fruits and vegetables, from the firm's garage, rear 323 South Mill street.

Police Declare Man Confesses To Slaying Former Chorus Girl

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—An upstate cannery worker was declared by police to have confessed today that he strangled a former Ziegfeld Follies girl because she resisted his advances in a shabby New York hotel room.

Officials said Birger G. Nordkvist, 41-year-old former lumberjack confessed the killing after a night of questioning following his return in police custody from Utica, N. Y.

The strangled woman was Evelyn (Yvonne) Hughes, 51-year-old one-time "whoopee" girl of the New York stage.

Capt. Edward Feeley quoted the Swedish-born Nordkvist as saying: "I don't know why I did it."

Feeley said Nordkvist told him he had been drinking heavily and "blew his top" when the former follies star resisted his advances Christmas night.

Her body was found the next morning in Nordkvist's Fourth Avenue hotel room.

Nordkvist was seized in Utica Tuesday night after he called the Hotel Ashland to ask "what happened" the previous night.

Mother En Route To See Badly Wounded Son At Washington

HARRISBURG, Dec. 28—(INS) The widowed mother of America's first quadruple amputee of the Korean war flew to Washington today for a reunion with her 20-year-old son.

During a short stopover at Harrisburg where she was met by American Legion officials and newsmen, Mrs. Clara Smith, of Middleburg, described her son as "just a happy-go-lucky boy who liked his fun and sports."

Pfc. Robert L. Smith arrived yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., following a trans-country flight from Travis Air Force Base in Fairfield, Calif.

Parts of each of his limbs were amputated when they froze after he was wounded in Korea.

Mrs. Smith, bewildered by the circumstances which thrust her son and herself before the attention of the nation, said she hoped her son would not break down emotionally when they met.

"I have been bitting my teeth and everything else to keep up," she said. "Some neighbors might think I don't care but I do my worrying when I'm alone."

Anti-Hoarding Order Is Clamped Down On Some Materials

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(INS)—The government today clamped anti-hoarding regulations on six broad categories of scarce materials, including metals, chemicals, lumber and paper.

National Production Administrator Harrison said "hoarding of these materials is unlawful" and declared persons found guilty of violating the restrictions are subject to stiff fines and jail sentences.

Among materials specifically mentioned by Harrison were iron and steel products, copper, asbestos, chromium, cobalt, tin, Portland cement, gypsum board, zinc, hog bristles and non-ferrous scrap.

Hoarding charges may be brought against a person if he holds supplies of the scarce materials "in excess of reasonable demands of business, personal or home consumption."

French Premier Facing New Test

PARIS, Dec. 28—(INS)—French Premier Rene Pleven will stand or fall with his cabinet today when he is expected to ask for a vote of confidence in the national assembly on proposed new taxes for rearmament.

The French leader is believed ready to back Defense Minister Jules Moch who told the assembly yesterday that the new military budget must be passed or France risk losing U. S. military aid fund.

The communist members had tried to head off debate on the new budget but were overwhelmingly defeated, 412 votes to 176.

Business And Financial Outlook For 1951

By ROGER W. BABSON

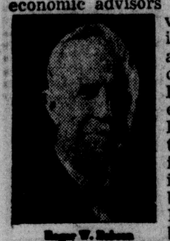

(Copyright, 1950, Publishers Financial Bureau, Inc.)

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, national income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

More Government Controls Coming

2. The outstanding feature of 1951 will be the ever-increasing interference of the government in the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The Administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But 'brain trusters' are overlooking the fact that the boom is old and that it was creaking badly when the Korean war broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

Roger W. Babson

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the Administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in legitimate business. Civilian production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

Labor Outlook Will Continue Tight

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

Commodity Prices Will Remain Firm

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level of December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore, our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressant on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower levels that existed during the first half of the year now closing.

Farm Outlook Good

13. Farmers' income for 1951 should average no less than that for 1950. Since the trend in the first half of 1950 was down, this forecast is not so optimistic as it might otherwise seem, for there is likely to be a weakening of the farmers' income position during the latter part of 1951.

14. Barring crop failures, the total supply of food available should be larger in 1951 than for 1950, since the government will raise planting quotas as part of its attack on inflation. If the weather is extremely favorable, the government will be blamed for farm-price weakness during the latter part of 1951.

15. With prospects good for a rising supply of feed grains, meat should be more plentiful next year than in 1950. Prices for meat, however, will be held up by continued high national income and by military needs.

Taxes Will Be Higher

16. The burden of federal taxes, both corporate and personal, will be increased again in 1951. State and municipal taxes will remain high.

17. There will be an excess profits tax in 1951. These excess profits taxes will be milder than those in force during World War II, but they will be inflationary and retard efficiency, economy and incentive.

18. There will be heavy pressure for increased federal "sales taxes" to discourage purchasing of luxury and certain non-essential goods. Congress will see the value of some such sales taxes as an inflation road block.

19. States and municipalities will again be under pressure to find adequtae sources of revenue. Further increases in such taxes can be looked for next year with additional cities and/or states adopting sales taxes.

20. Despite renewed efforts to increase the long-term capital gains tax above the present 25 per cent figure, rates will remain unchanged.

Domestic Trade Will Be Less

21. Credit curbs will cut into the demand for automobiles and household equipment. Completions of fewer dwellings will also act as a damper on furniture sales.

22. Falling demand for hard goods should mean a stabilization of the public's spending for food and lower-priced soft goods.

23. The trend forecast in No. 22 will mean a decline in department store volume, but I predict a rise in the sales of variety chains and of drug chains.

Foreign Trade Outlook Fair

24. Barring new war developments, I look for continued shrinkage in our exports during 1951. Imports, however, should rise further. Total foreign trade should not be much changed, but the exporters will be on the short end of this business with the importers gaining.

25. It will become more difficult to convince Congress that additional heavy credits should be granted abroad except for war supplies.

26. As was the case this year, many domestic manufacturers will feel increasing competition from foreign merchandise. The cry for increased tariff protection will be heard again in the land.

27. Business and financial forecasts for next year are NOT based on the thought that World War III will start in 1951. Russia is certainly heading for war, but we do not believe she now wants it in Europe. She will be satisfied to have her satellites continue taking unexpected jabs at us, while the Politburo boys hand out the soothing syrup. But we may see another episode like "Korea" in 1951.

More Deficit Financing After June 30, 1951

28. The first half of 1951 may actually see a budget surplus as a result of high national income and increased taxation. Later, if Congress goes along with the Administration's plans for huge rearmament, a federal deficit will arose during the last half of the year.

29. As a result of the preceding prediction, money supplies should not begin to rise until after business has turned down. Increases at such a time are not likely to have much effect on prices.

30. Government bonds will be held tightly between the floor of Federal Reserve support purchases and the ceiling of Federal Reserve anti-inflation sales. Under such conditions, price changes should be negligible.

31. A great deal will be heard in 1951 about giving the Federal Reserve Board powerful controls over member bank loaning policies. Congress is not likely to pass such controls, however, unless commodity prices go a lot higher, or World War III comes.

Stock Market and Bond Outlook Uncertain

32. I see nothing now to indicate that we are entering a period of improved international relations. The danger of war remains. Until it disappears, wise people will move out of large bomb-vulnerable cities and avoid having investments in such areas.

33. The stock averages may work somewhat higher during the first half of next year, but sometime after 1951 they will sell lower than current quotations.

34. Stocks now in the best position for 1951 should be those that have not been popular as inflation hedges in the past months. I like good chain store stocks.

35. Investment trust funds, pension funds and insurance companies will provide an excellent backlog of demand for sound income stocks where good values can be demonstrated.

36. The successful investor next year will be the one who follows a carefully planned investment program. Such a program will emphasize diversification — not only by company and industry, but also by quality. Over-concentration will not pay in 1951.

37. Highest grade taxable corporate bonds should hold in a narrow price range during 1951, but I see no reason for individual investors buying them. For my forecast for long-term government bonds, see No. 30 above. The only corporation bonds which interest me are convertibles.

38. With income taxes slated to increase in 1951, tax-exempt bonds should continue in good demand. There has been some speculation in these, however, and any downward change in the tax outlook might cause a sudden turnabout in prices for municipals. Investors should see to it that their bond maturities are carefully diversified, with some part of their bond funds maturing each year.

Real Estate Activity Will Decline

39. The real estate outlook for 1951 will be strongly affected by curbs on mortgage credit. Much of the recent boom was the result of easy credit—almost nothing down and small easy payments for years hence.

40. New home construction will suffer a greater decline than other lines. Non-essential commercial building will also be hit.

41. The coming decline in new building will throw a wet blanket over speculation in vacant suburban lots.

42. The scare caused by the Korea-China war and fears of an early outbreak in other sections will adversely affect the demand for big city real estate. Lower business volumes and the draft next year will also curtail such demand.

43. Small sustenance farms should hold up well in price as demand will be spurred by those seeking refuge outside the big cities. Demand for large commercial farms, however, should weaken as the year progresses.

44. The swing back toward rent control will act as a further damper on new building. There is no incentive to build homes for rental income.

45. Tighter credit controls will make it more difficult to purchase older residential properties and the prices for these should weaken.

46. As building volume slackens in 1951, the quality of available materials and workmanship should improve. This will help those who have saved their money and can pay for at least half the cost of a new home.

Defense Orders and Politics Will Increase

47. Those who can do so should attempt to get defense orders as a means of holding up production volumes and reducing overhead. Not too much profit from such war business should be expected, however, as these contracts will be subject to tight-fisted renegotiations.

48. The political outlook for 1951 will be completely dominated by jockeying for position in the presidential race for 1952. Most of Congress' time will be spent on international problems; but either war or peace could come early in 1951; which could make many of the above forecasts useless.

49. In domestic matters, despite recent election changes in party alignment, Congress will still be dominated by a conservative coalition of northern Republicans and "unregenerated" southern Democrats. When the heat is on in a tough fight, the north-south coalition will still be able to curb onslaughts by New Dealers.

50. We are gradually headed for a one party system and finally a dictatorship. The Republicans will sometimes win with the slogan "Had Enough?"; but their reign will be short-lived. Too many persons are following the pernicious doctrine of asking for higher wages and shorter hours, speculating in stocks and goods, growing rich on paper, voting Democratic for selfish reasons and letting the country go to the dogs, war or no war!

The name "dune" was first given to the sand hills which stretch along the seacoast of the Netherlands and the north of France.

Patent Is Granted To L. B. Petrack Of Ellwood City

On December 5, 1950, the United States Patent Office granted patent number 2,533,040 on a "Limit Switch With Pendulum Arrester" to Lawrence B. Petrak, Ellwood City, Pa.

Limit switches are used extensively for the automatic control of reciprocating apparatus such as electric lifts, traveling cranes and the like. They act to cut off the power supply if the moving carriage goes beyond a certain specified limit; and in one common construction, they include a pair of levers that are secured to a shaft and are adapted to be engaged by a tripper or striker mounted on the traveling element. The limit of movement of these switch parts is fixed by mechanical stops.

However, if the reciprocating member is run at high speed, the trippers, levers and stops are subject to severe abuse, and breakage frequently occurs. This involves substantial loss in the case of large costly equipment because of the time necessarily consumed in making a replacement. Moreover, damage may also result from the rebound levers, after striking the stops, to an intermediate setting in which normal engagement by the trippers is precluded.

It is the object of Mr. Petrak's invention to overcome this limitation, and thus he has devised a switch construction wherein a weighted pendulum is pivoted adjacent to the levers and is adapted to be engaged by them after they have traveled through a predetermined angular distance. As a consequence, the pendulum tilts and thus serves as a progressively effective damper for the excessive movements of the levers. Of course after finally arresting the moving parts of the switch, the pendulum restores them to position for the next operation.

According to Mr. Petrak, his arrangement is such that there is less likelihood of injury to its parts than in switches having fixed stops which perform their arresting function suddenly and positively. Moreover, there is no rebound of the levers; the pendulum requires no maintenance beyond an occasional lubrication and does not materially increase the overall cost of the switch; and the latter is characterized by improved action and longer life as compared to limit switches heretofore in use.

The application for this patent was filed on May 12, 1948.

Oregon Area Is Animal Haven

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., (INS)—The Malheur Wildlife Refuge in Southeastern Oregon is a vast place where the deer and the antelope roam along with 268 other species of bird and animal life.

Besides serving as a protected nesting area, the 160,000 acre reserve is a nesting and feeding spot for Northern ducks when they begin their migration south in the fall.

President Theodore Roosevelt founded what now is one of the best developed wildlife reserves in the nation by issuing an executive order in 1908 setting aside 88,960 acres in the region.

Extensive development began in 1935 with the government's acquisition of the fabulous "P" Ranch, which added some 65,000 acres to the refuge.

The purchase gave the government control of the Blitzen river during its run through the 35-mile long Blitzen valley. Dams were built to flood meadows, creating ideal nesting conditions for ducks and geese and other species of wild life that nest there yearly.

The flooded meadows both feed the wildlife and pay part of the expenses of the refuge through lease fees. Last year cattlemen and trappers paid over $64,000 for grazing haying and trapping rights.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By DR. ERNEST G. OSBORNE

Growing Up is Tough.

"I think growing up is tough," complained fifteen-year-old Rita. "Yesterday mother said, 'Rita, I wish you wouldn't act so childish.' But today when I put up my hair, she told me I was trying to be too grown up. I don't know how to act."

Rita's plaint is a common one. Both boys and girls in the growing up years find themselves puzzled. And it isn't only the attitudes of the adults that puzzle them. Sometimes, for instance, Rita is anxious to be taken for a girl of twenty. According to her mother she "puts on airs". Then again, she turns her attention to jacks or even pulls out the dolls she used to play with a half-dozen years ago. And she doesn't understand why she makes these shifts.

Our teen-age youngsters want to be grown up, yes. But sometimes it feels good to have mother or dad give them the sort of attention ten-year olds like.

It's no simple job, this business of growing up. But we parents can help a lot if we aren't too logical about the whole thing. Recognizing that there are natural shifts of feeling back and forth from wanting to be a child with the protection that brings, to being a grown-up with the satisfaction of being "on their own," we can try to accept both. Then the growing-up process won't seem so tough.

Miss Norma Donnan Writes From Africa

In a letter just received from Miss Norma Donnan, local girl, who is serving as a missionary in Kankan, French West Africa, by Woodson W. Collins of The News staff, Miss Donnan relates her experiences on the field as a printer missionary.

Miss Donnan arrived in Africa last August after intensive language study in France and assumed her duties of printing the gospel in the native dialects, some of which had never appeared in print prior to that time.

The former girl had an unfortunate experience in taking nuvaquine, a drug to prevent malaria, and it didn't agree with her, bringing on a severe case of eczema. It affected her feet severely, with infection setting in and sending her to bed. She has improved considerably and at the time of the letter written, December 12, she had shoes on her feet for the first time in three months.

Presently, the presses are turning out four different books, two of them the Gospel of Mark in various dialects. Other gospel literature in the various dialects are being printed on the church presses in order to provide the natives with religious reading materials.

Miss Donnan, who is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ora McCullough of Walnut street, is the daughter of Mrs. Ida Donnan of San Jose, Calif., and the late Alec Donnan. She looks forward to the arrival of Misses Sallie P. Botham and Cecelia Lewis, local missionaries, who will return to their field early next year.

Portland Fish Undergo Purge

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Few people became excited when the city of Portland recently discharged 6,000 employes in the greatest mass dismissal in the city's history.

Reason for the lack of excitement is that the purge victims are fish, Gambusia Affinis, to be exact.

Affinis went on the city payroll two years ago with much fanfare. They were to go out to ponds, ornamental pools and other bodies of water to gobble up mosquito larvae.

After Affinis passed the six-month probationary period, they had what they thought was permanent tenure and, according to charges filed with the civil service board, they began to lay down, or rather to float, on the job.

The trouble seems to have been one of temperament. Many of the Affinis tribe came from California where the mosquitos are endowed with that state's traditional vim and vigor.

To tangle with Oregon's inferior breed of mosquitoes, they apparently felt, was somewhat beneath their dignity.

Arthur Woody, supervisor of the city's insect control bureau, began secret negotiations and now has definite commitments from the Cambusia Holbrooki of Salt Lake. They are reported to be more tractable and better suited to Oregon's temperate climate.

Woody then sluiced his 6,000 insubordinates into the polluted Williamette river that runs through Portland—a fate worse than death.

Children Drama Education Aid

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Children's love of "make believe" is being used by child development education for the young.

The State College of Home Economics at Carnell recently held its first workshop in "Creative Dramatics for Children".

Twenty-one mothers, teachers and others who work with community groups attended the five days of discussion and demonstrations conducted by Miss Muriel Sharon of New York City, director of the Children's theater of the YMHA.

A group of 12-year-old Ithaca boys and girls were Miss Sharon's laboratory material as she conducted a close in creative dramatics for children.

May Have Been Shot By Chinese Soldier That He Trained

WALTHAM, Mass., Dec. 28.—(INS)—An ironic sidelight of the war in Korea today was reported by a wounded Revere soldier who admitted he may have been shot by one of the Chinese he trained several years ago.

Lt. James F. Gallagher, son of a Boston fireman, was one of 31 wounded soldiers flown to Murphy General hospital for treatment. Nearly all the wounded suffered frostbite and some may have to undergo surgery as a result.

Lt. Gallagher's right leg was shattered by a Chinese bullet near the Manchurian border when his unit was trying to fight through a road block.

Taught Chinese

Gallagher, a former marine, was stationed with a small American contingent in Shanghai during the 30's when the city was open to foreigners. While there he taught the Chinese how to use firearms. The lieutenant said some of the Chinese now may be lining up Americans in their gunsights.

Captain Edward J. Bruger of Somerset told how he and another soldier, Sgt. Lawrence Hickey of Boston, walked ten miles to rejoin their retreating unit despite leg wounds. The captain said both he and Hickey were shot in the thigh and trapped behind enemy lines.

He said they were without food for nearly three days and that their feet became frostbitten. Units of Red Chinese, he said, were all about them but they walked through knee-deep snow until they made contact with American forces. Capt. Bruger said:

"Did we pray? I'll say we did. I'm sure that prayer more than anything else brought us through. We made it, and now I'm hoping they can save my toes."

MORAVIA

The Willing Workers class of the Moravia Presbyterian church will have an oyster supper on Monday evening, January 1, at the North Beaver Grange Hall.

On Wednesday evening, December 20, a Christmas program was put on at the Moravia Presbyterian church by the Young People of the church. After the program the children were all delighted by seeing Santa Claus who presented each child with a gift. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

A Christmas party was enjoyed by the Lucy Henderson Missionary Society's groups 1 and 2, at the home of Mrs. Margaret Perry on Wednesday, December 20, with about 30 attending. The Perry home was gaily decorated in the yuletide motif. The group was served a full course chicken dinner. After dinner the business meeting was conducted by the new president, Mrs. Olive Kennedy, with an exchange of gifts later. Next meeting of both groups will be held at the home of Mrs. Lucille McConnell on Wednesday, January 3.

Coffee consumption in the United States in the first four months of 1950 dropped 20 per cent.

In semi-darkness, an object can be seen more clearly if the eyes are focused a little to the right.

Today's Fashion Flash

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The new spring dresses and suits will be hip-happy . . .

Most fashion details will play up the section of her anatomy that the American woman traditionally plays down.

Foremost among the hipline attention getters will be the jutting dress-and-jacket ensembles. Peplums will be pushed out over the peplum, seen on dressy suits and hips by interlinings of starchy fabric.

On skirts worn without jackets, pockets will replace peplums. They too will jut with a crinoline crispness. Pockets will perk out with either a forward or sideward movement.

Most practical hippy fashion for the hippy woman will be the tunic top—a flaring, long peplum that succeeds in hiding the hips even as it gives them importance!

"Assignment; America"

By INEZ ROBB
(Reg U S Pat Off.)
(Distributed By International News Service)

'Happy New Year?'

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—It is a little difficult to decide today whether to wish the customers "Happy New Year" or just sit down and have hysterics.

It's been a lousy year and it's been a lousy world. But I've got to be honest about it: There's never been a minute when I haven't been glad to be alive and kicking.

Perhaps one of the reasons I've been glad to be alive is that I can kick. Kicking prerogatives have been receding in large segments of the world for a long time. It's a privilege to be an American these days and be able to kick, squawk and jay walk to the heart's content.

In Time For Atom Bomb

There are days when I look at the headlines and wonder if I have been working my fingers to the bone the last two months to get our new apartment ready in time for the first atom bomb. And when Bob Considine came into the office the other day and said he had at last bought himself a car, some cynic said "just in time for gas rationing."

But you can't stop living. Women have to go on making homes and men have to go on buying cars to transport kids to schools and to camps and to visit Grandma. I can't quit making a home just because occasionally I'm a little nervous out of the service. You can't stop living just because history once more seems to be on the make.

Get A Little Pleasure

No one ever confused me with Einstein or Pollyanna, but I figure as long as I'm alive, I might as well get a little pleasure out of my predicament. Yes, even a little fun. I don't see that a long face is going to improve my lot or solve the international situation in general. As long as I've got to put up with the world, it might as well be mutual.

I suspect it will be harder for me to make a home in 1951 than in 1950. I wouldn't be a mite surprised if we don't have to eat Chuck at Chez Robb a lot oftener than Sirloin, but then we generally do anyway.

And if we are reduced to stew meat, why, during World War II, I learned to cook stew meat so's a body couldn't tell it from T-bone—much.

And as for sugar, well, I learned to do without it in my coffee during the last fracas and my only hope now is that I won't have to learn to do without coffee.

Mad On At Washington

At the moment I have a mad on at Washington, and I will not under any circs wish it a happy new year. That is S.O.P. for most Americans who at some time or other in their lives are furious at the fall guys in office.

But no matter how mad I get at officialdom, I have never fallen out of love with my countrymen. I think Americans are nice, and you can quote me.

And at the moment, I think they are several light miles ahead of their government, prepared to make ten times the sacrifices the men in office are afraid to ask of this great people.

What is a Sirloin when the free world is at stake? Or pleasure driving? Or chocolate cake? Or cigarettes?

If I am frustrated it is not because I don't have a new fur coat but because on the eve of a new year my government does not tell me what vital duties I must perform—what small—by any measure—sacrifices I must make to see this new year through the way I begin it: As an American. Me and 150,000,000 other Americans.

I wouldn't be surprised in 1951 if things get worse before they get better. A lot of things wouldn't surprise me, mainly unpleasant.

But I've got to admit it: I'll be glad to be alive and kicking. And I suspect most people will, too. I guess I can put up with the new year if it can put up with me.

I guess it would be a waste of time to have hysterics.

We're alive, aren't we? And kicking!

Happy New Year, Kids!

Mrs. Senns led the singing of Christmas carols.

CAROLERS

On Friday evening the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts sang carols about town. Later they went to the church basement where Lyle Richards showed movies and lunch was served. As a climax to a pleasant evening Santa Claus appeared.

P.T.A. MEETING

On Thursday evening children from the New Bedford school presented an interesting Christmas program for the P.T.A. Later the children and adults were served lunch. There was no business meeting.

Undertaker Revives Man Thought Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—(INS)—James Angelo, 69, is very much alive today thanks to an undertaker's assistant who worked in reverse.

When Miss Jennie Nucifora, 25, found Angelo, her grandfather, prostrate on the couch of her South Philadelphia home yesterday, she thought he was dead.

She made several attempts to reach a doctor, and finally, in desperation, she summoned Vincent Gangemi, a nearby undertaker, and family friend.

Domenic Sabatino, 32, Gangemi's assistant, noticed a flicker in Angelo's eyelids and immediately began resuscitation attempts while police were called.

The victim, who had been suffering with a heart ailment, showed more signs of life as Sabatino worked over him, and the assistant continued his efforts as police carried the man out on a stretcher. He was still working on Angelo when they arrived at a hospital.

Physicians later announced that Angelo was resting comfortably, and probably would recover.

The sloth lives most of its life upside down.

Latest Report On Casualties In Korea 38,325

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The Defense Department announced today that through December 22 relatives had been notified of 38,325 American casualties in Korea. This was an increase of 1,904 over the total for the previous week.

The new casualty total included 5,742 killed in action; 27,012 wounded, of whom 684 have died; and 5,571 listed as missing in action.

The Army had 32,066 casualties, the Marine Corps 5,524, the Navy 429 and the Air Force 306.

Actual casualties in Korea are higher, because about three weeks is required for verifying injuries and death and notifying relatives.

The new total, however, includes many casualties that have occurred since the Chinese Communists launched their big offensive on November 27.

The total dead, including those who have died of wounds and six known to have died in a Communist prison, is 6,432. Of these, the Army has had 5,186 deaths, the Marine Corps 1,079, the Air Force, 108 and the Navy 59.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo has estimated total casualties through December 15, not including frostbite, at just under 43,000.

Mobilization Of Scientific Talent Of U.S. Proposed

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Henry D. Smyth, a member of the Atomic Energy commission, proposed today the mobilization of the nation's actual and potential scientific talent in the battle for survival against Communism.

In a speech before the American Association for the advancement of Science—a group comprising some 218 different societies of scientists—Smyth called for the creation of a Scientific Service Corps.

He suggested that this corps be directed by a scientific manpower board which would have a roster of every scientist in the U. S. and be civilian in nature. Principal job of the board would be "to get the right man on the right job".

Smyth proposed that those of military age be required to join the service corps for assignment to projects tabbed most necessary by the board.

For scientists not of military age the board would have only advisory powers Smyth added:

"With information on the full scope of National Defense Research projects, it could be an invaluable guide for men who wanted to be sure they were making the best use of their abilities."

Be Careful Of Gas Fumes Mayor Advises

Mayor John F. Haven today warned the public against lighting a match in a room when gas goes off, wthout having been turned off.

To use a match invites an explosion, he explained.

During these cold days gas is apt to go out in a hot water tank or stoves.

Fumes collect, hence it is dangerous to light a match to relight the stove or hot water tank.

Open a window or doors to let the fumes escape, and be sure the fumes are all out, before you strike a match, the mayor advised.

Exhibits Pouring Into State Show

HARRISBURG, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The vanguard of farm machinery and other commercial exhibits are pouring today into the state farm show building at Harrisburg for the five-day exposition opening January 8.

The 1951 show will excel all others in importance of its contribution to the advancement of Pennsylvonia agriculture, according to Agriculture Secretary Miles Horst, chairman of the Farm Show Commission.

In view of the war emergency, there is need for expanded food production and the 127 events and meetings of farm organizations are scheduled at a strategic time, Horst said.

Current farm problems will be discussed before more than 10,000 persons at meetings of 30 statewide farm groups.

Lassies Said To Be Brighter At Six Than Males

By ROBERT N. SCHWARTZ
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—A prominent educator said today that boys of six are not as bright as girls the same age and urged that the school entrance age for boys be raised.

Frank R. Pauly, director of research for the Tulsa, Okla., public schools, told a meeting of the American Association for the advancement of science in Cleveland:

"Many children are not ready for the traditional first grade of public school when they are approaching six year of age. Particularly is this true of boys."

The Oklahoma educator maintained that, ideally, admission to school should be based on a thorough mental and physical testing program geared to the individual child.

Boys Should Enter Later

Since this is not possible in a large public school system, however, Pauly advocated revising existing laws to permit boys to begin school three months later than girls.

Such action would solve many mental hygiene problems, he added, declaring:

"There will be less frustration for boys, their parents, and their teachers if this slower development is recognized and provided for through the extension of kindergarten or otherwise".

Would Save Millions

Pauly estimated that such action might save the nation's taxpayers $150 to $300 million annually in treating mental and behavior problems attributable to pushing children into educational factories before they are ready.

He said permitting boys to start school at an older age would give them a 'more even break in school achievement" and work wonders for their egos.

Evaluating Reports

Some 6,000 of the nation's leading scientists are attending the A.A.A.S.' 117th meeting. They are discussing and evaluating some 1,200 reports for progress in every field of science during the past year.

In another paper on an educational theme, Stuart A. Courtis of the University of Michigan charged that all accepted current learning and intelligence tests are misleading because they do not take into account the fact that children grow and mature even while being tested.

He said all conclusions based on such data are invalid and added:

"Indeed, the effort and money expended on tests and measurements have been worse than wasted. For they have created patterns in our behavior that will be difficult to remove".

George Patterson, city assessor, has ceased making assessments for 1950. However, in early January, he will begin making the triennial assessment for the years 1952-54 inclusive.

ISSUE 1768 PERMITS

One thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight permits to build, or remodel homes, or buildings, have been issued by Edward Longacre, city bureau of building clerk, this year.

AT HER STEPDAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE

"Several years ago, I married a widower with a small daughter. Shortly after our marriage, she was adopted by her aunt who reared her from the time of her mother's death. Recently, she was married and my husband and I were invited to both the ceremony and the reception. At the wedding, the aunt asked my husband to escort the groom's widowed mother up the aisle and sit with her which necessitated my going alone. Since the groom's mother has a grown son who was present with his wife, don't you think he should have escorted his mother? I feel that perhaps I should not have attended the wedding at all. What do you think?"

Answer: Since you were invited, it was perfectly proper for you to have attended the wedding especially since, although you are the second wife, your predecessor is now dead. It is only in the case of a divorce when a meeting of both wives would create an embarrassing situation that the second wife should not attend the wedding of her stepchildren. Logically I think the groom's mother should have walked up the aisle with her other son, but I suppose the aunts thought they were being gracious in appointing the bride's father to escort her.

Question: What is a "junior bridesmaid?"

Answer: Something between a flower girl and a bridesmaid. Sometimes when the bride has a young sister, at this "in between" age, she wishes to include in her wedding party, she will make her a junior bridesmaid.

Question: A friend of mine carried a red bag and wore a red hat while attending a funeral. Although the deceased was not a relative, this woman did go to the cemetery. Don't you think such bright colors are of place at a funeral.

Answer: While it is not necessary to wear black, one should avoid wearing bright colors at a funeral. The family of the deceased should, of course, wear mourning clothes.

CASES OF STORES LANDED AT PUSAN BEACH

—Acme Telephoto

PUSAN, SOUTH KOREA—Cases of stores are stacked on the beach here after being transported from the Hungnam beachhead. The 105,000 man 10th Corps, successfully evacuated with 99 percent of its equipment, was reported linked with the United States 8th Army in a new defense line.

Plan Survey Of Buying Habits

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The government announced plans today to survey the buying habits of 17,000 families in 91 cities early next year to put its cost of living index on "a modernized, post-war basis".

Ewan Clague, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the study will lead to major revision in the index which is now based on items bought by American families 15 years ago.

Among the cities to be surveyed are: Pittsburgh and Scranton, Pa.

HASH DELIGHT

NEW YORK. — Corned beef hash hobnobs among the more sophisticated dishes these days and is one of the most popular canned meat items on the market. One delicious combination using this good old favorite is tomatoes stuffed with corned beef hash. To prepare, choose big, lush-red garden tomatoes and scoop out the centers. Combine the pulp with corned beef hash, season with a little salt, if necessary, and stuff the tomato with this mixture. Then sprinkle each tomato with grated cheese and bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

JOE TO FIGHT AGAIN

Although he failed to catch and knock out Cesar Brion, some fight principles figure Joe Louis is yet good enough to lick almost any of the current crop except Joe Louis. He didn't draw enough money in Chicago to pay all he owes Uncle Sam, which is said to be $3,000. He may get square with Old Man Whiskers the next time he fights.

Around Hollywood

By JAMES PADGITT
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 28 — The royal ladies of 18th century England probably were bustier and hippier than the royal dolls of 20th Century Hollywood. But Virginia Mayo is convinced that they may have been lacking when it comes to shapely legs.

"Of course," the blonde star declares, "I can't prove it—about the leg business. I'm just guessing. But did you ever see a painting of one of those women showing her legs?"

Wore Bustles

Virginia emoted opposite Gregory Peck in the yet-to-be released Period picture, "Captain Horatio Hornblower," filmed in England. She wore bustles and billowing dresses with low necklines.

Virginia, who was cast in another Period picture, "The Travelers," as she returned to Hollywood, said that she did considerable research on 18th century costuming.

"All the important females of that era," the actress said, "seemed to be full blown, with notably curving figures. They make most of our modern actresses look pretty anemic."

Although the gowns she wears in "Hornblower" conceal considerable that is beautiful about Virginia Mayo, anyone can recall the Mayo figure in such flickers as "The West Point Story," "The Flame and the Arrow" and "Always Leave Them Laughing."

One Quick Look

The paying customers will get at least one quick peek at the Mayo gams in the scene in which Peck lifts her in his arms and carries her from her sick bed.

In "The Travellers" in which she staves off Kirk Douglas for eight reels, Virginia portrays a ranch girl and as such wears what the studio calls "an open range costume," consisting of leather pants and a low cut blouse of deer skin.

Polio Care Is Lecture Theme

Kiwanians Hear Of Work Being Done

New Castle Kiwanians saw for themselves some of the results of their work in the care of polio victims Wednesday at noon.

Mrs. Evelyn Hanlon, a nurse in the D. T. Watson Home for Crippled Children in Leetsdale, Pa., gave an illustrated lecture to the club showing by pictures and narration what is being done in the home.

Boys and girls suffering from the disease are quartered, treated and educated in the Watson Home and a number of New Castle youngsters have been treated there, some of them with remarkable success.

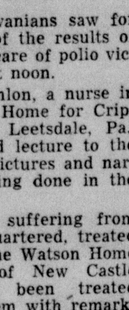

As special guests at the noon luncheon in The Castleton were six Lawrence county boys and girls who are under treatment or who have been treated in the home.

President Al Mellor introduced Thomas Paden, who in turn asked the members who had young guests to introduce them. Postmaster William R. Hanna, chairman of the polio committee for the club introduced his committee members.

Mrs. Hanlon explained the pictures shown. Her husband Charles Hanlon served as operator.

Before adjournment Mr. Mellor turned over the gavel to the new president of the club David L. Gatrall.

FROM WAR FRONT TO CONGRESS

—Acme Telephoto

NEW YORK—Major Alfred D. Sieminski, 39, who was elected a congressman from New Jersey while fighting with the Tenth Corps in Korea, is greeted by his wife, Marie and daughter, Christine, upon his arrival from the war front. The major said GI's want to know why United Nations forces failed to cripple Communist China's and Russia's power plant of the far east, namely the huge North Korean Power dams on the Yalu river. "It seems the United Nations place more value on cement than on the blood and lives of those who died for the cause."

Your New Social Security

By MYRON MILBOUER

(Manager of the New Castle Social Security Office)

Today we will bring together in one article the principal changes in your social security made by the 1950 amendments.

First, nearly ten million workers heretofore excluded from social security will be brought into the system January 1, 1951. These include the self-employed (other than farmers and members of certain professions), regular farm workers, regular household workers, employees of nonprofit organizations under certain conditions, employees of state and local government brought in by voluntary agreements between the states and the Federal secruity administrator, temporary Federal employees not under a retirement system, and a few miscellaneous groups.

People now receiving social security payments have had their monthly checks increased. These increases range from about 50 per cent for the highest benefit groups to 100 per cent for the lower groups. For example, a person formerly getting $40 a month in insurance payments as a retired worker now receives about $64. Anyone formerly receiving $10 to $15 a month is now getting double that amount. The widow and two children of an insured worker with combined insurance payments of $70 under the old law now get $128. The maximum payment to a family has been raised from $85 to $150.

It is much easier to become eligible for payments. Only a year and a half of work under social security will be necessary if a worker reaches 65 or dies before the end of 1954. Anyone over 65 now needs only the six quarter-years of work. Thousands heretofore denied social security because of insufficient work will be paid under the new law.

Formerly, beneficiaries could not receive their insurance payments for any month in which they earned more than $14.99 in work covered by the law. Now, they can earn as much as $50 a month and still receive their benefits. Those 75 years of age or over may accept social security payments regardless of the amount of their earnings.

Several changes in amounts and types of payments have been made. As before, the child's benefit is one-half the amount of the parent's primary divided equally all the entitled children in the family.

An aged husband or widower may receive benefits on his wife's record if she was both fully and currently insured and if he was dependent on her.

Dependent parents 65 or over will receive three-fourths of the worker's primary amount instead of one-half as before.

A wife under 65 whose husband is receiving old-age insurance payments may receive payments also if she has in her care a child entitled to benefits based on her husband's account.

A divorced former wife of a deceased worker may be entitled to mother's insurance benefits if she has in her care a child entitled to payments based on the worker's wages, and if she was receiving at least half of her support from the worker at the time of his death.

In all cases where workers died in September 1950 or later, a lump sum payment may be also made even though monthly beneftis are also payable.

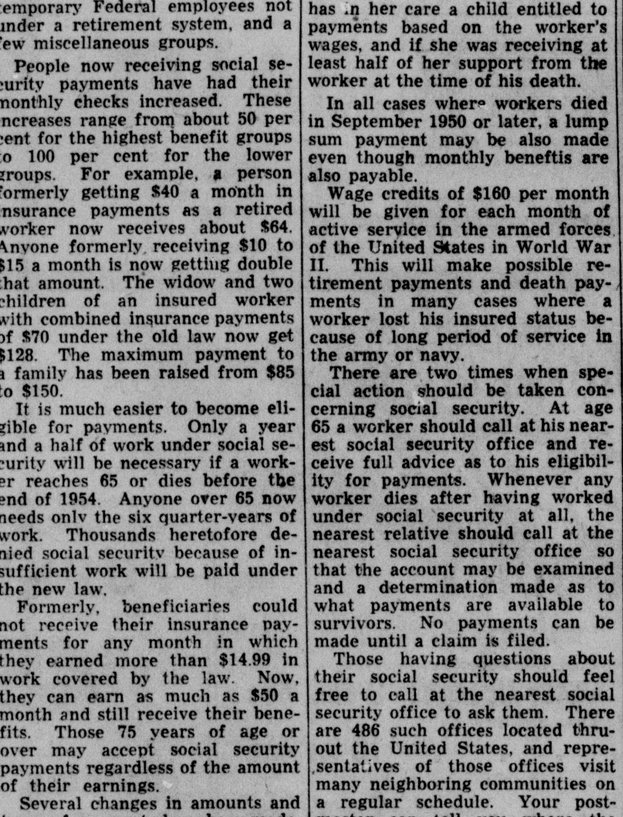

Wage credits of $160 per month will be given for each month of active service in the armed forces of the United States in World War II. This will make possible retirement payments and death payments in many cases where a worker lost his insured status because of long period of service in the army or navy.

There are two times when special action should be taken concerning social security. At age 65 a worker should call at his nearest social security office and receive full advice as to his eligibility for payments. Whenever any worker dies after having worked under social security at all, the nearest relative should call at the nearest social security office so that the account may be examined and a determination made as to what payments are available to survivors. No payments can be made until a claim is filed.

Those having questions about their social security should feel free to call at the nearest social security office to ask them. There are 486 such offices located thruout the United States, and representatives of those offices visit many neighboring communities on a regular schedule. Your postmaster can tell you where the nearest social security office is and whether a representative will be in your town and how often. In this area the social security office is located at 500 Frew building, New Castle.

Your Social Security Administration wants to be of service to you and invites you to call for information which will assure your obtaining the benefits to which you are entitled.

Industrial Users Of Gas In Pittsburgh Asked To Curtail

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Industrial users of gas were asked today to cut consumption 50 to 100 percent because of the frigid weather gripping Pittsburgh.

Gas company officials requested the curtailment to insure adequate supplies for residential users.

Most district plants and mills will be able to switch to coal or oil auxiliaries. But the Carnegie-Illinois Corporation, one of the biggest consumers in the district, said it would shut down many operations not served by coal or oil auxiliaries.

These include rolling and finishing mills in the company's Clairton, Duquesne, Braddock, Homestead and Vandergrift plants, as well as its wheel and axel works at McKees Rocks.

Sheriff To Ask Ration Raise

High Food Costs Hit Jail Meals

Rising costs of food stuffs have forced Sheriff Frank L. Coen to ask that the daily jail food allowance be upped from 75 cents per day per prisoner to $1 per day.

The petition for an increase will be heard Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

The last raise, that to 75 cents was made two years ago. Since then the costs have continued to rise and the sheriff claims the 75 cents has not covered the cost.

Any money left over from food allowances for prisoners goes back to the county.

PROPERTY APPRAISAL

For some time the county commissioners have considered having the various properties of the county appraised for insurance purposes.

On Wednesday Paul C. Cost, Sr., of the Industrial Appraisal Company presented a plan to the commissioners for their consideration. No action was taken but the matter will probably be explored further.

DIVORCES—NON-SUPPORT

Divorce court was held in court room No. 1 Wednesday by Judge W. Walter Braham. In court room No. 2 Judge John G. Lamoree held desertion and non-support court.

TO ADVERTISE BIDS

Bids will be advertised by the county commissioners for the plumbing work on the tuberculosis receiving station near the county home.

Appeals are being heard today by the county commissioners from assessments made by the district assessors.

Portersville Area Children Treated

Residents of the Portersville and Muddy Creek area held their annual Christmas party for the children last Saturday at the Portersville hotel. Santa arrived in his sleigh and distributed treats to the kiddies. Christmas carols were sung by a choral group and both young and old enjoyed the Christmas festivities.

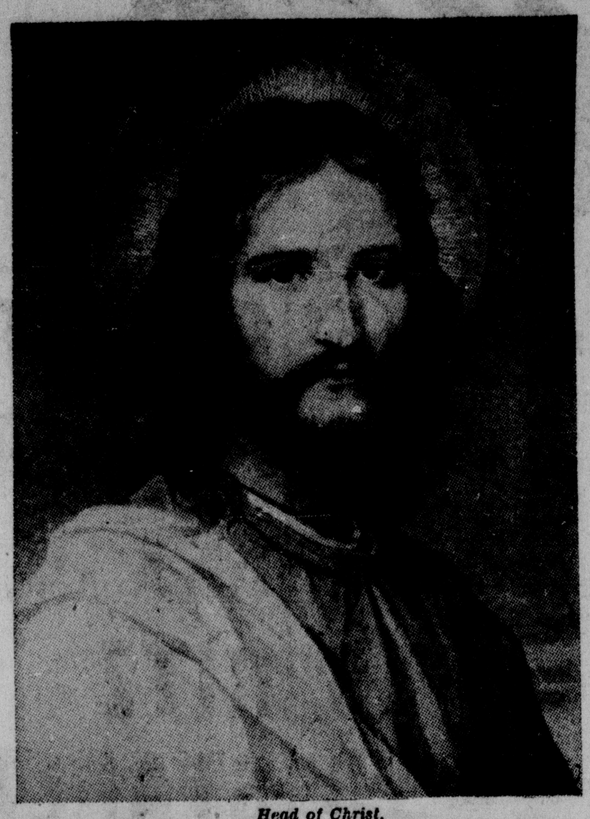

Following the distribution of the treat, Santa boarded his sleigh and left the district.

GROW BY FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST

LOVE ME, AND KEEP MY COMMANDMENTS, JESUS SAID

Scripture—John 15:1-10; Galatians 2:20; Philippians 3:8-16

Head of Christ.

"But one thing I do, forgetting the things that are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ."—Philippians 3:13-14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

In last week's lesson we celebrated the Birth of the Saviour. Today we read about His last utterances and commands to the disciples, uttered just a few hours before He was arrested in the Garden of Gethsemane, and taken away to prison and death.

St. John is the only one of the New Testament writers to give us these last words of the Master. We should read them carefully and memorize them—keeping them in our hearts as Jesus' mother, Mary, did the occurrences during the birth of the Babe.

What did Jesus say to His disciples at this dread time? In the first place, He used the familiar habit of pruning trees to make them more fruitful as an illustration of the relationship between Himself and His Father, God:

"I am the true vine, and My father is the husbandman.

"Every branch in Me that beareth not fruit He taketh away: and every branch that beareth fruit, He purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit."

Jesus, too, as He lived man's life on earth, learned obedience by the things which He suffered, as we all do. He submitted to His Father's will and was triumphant.

"I am the vine, ye are the branches," Jesus told the disciples. "He that abideth in Me, and I in Him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without Me ye can do nothing."

"If ye abide in Me, and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

"As the Father hath loved Me, so have I loved you; Continue ye in My love. If ye keep My commandments, ye shall abide in My love; even as I have kept My Father's commandments, and abide in His love."

If we all followed Jesus' commandments, as spoken to His followers on the eve of His going, we would have no more family quarrels, no church fights; no world wars. We should love one another and settle our disputes peacefully. Each one of us personally can help by living the life Jesus wishes us to.

St. Paul learned his lesson the hard way. From the arrogant Pharisee who despised those new religionists and was determined to stamp them out, he was brought low—physically as well as spiritually—by the vision of Jesus as he journeyed to Damascus to persecute Christians there.

Writing to the Galatians from Rome he said: "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

This lesson has too many good things in it to cover all in our brief space here. The teacher should make a thorough study of it, and if the children can get the idea of love and fellowship with Christ and obedience to His commands to love God and one another, much good can be gained.

It was toward the end of Paul's life that he wrote the Philippians: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ.

"Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing." In this statement Paul expressed his own determination to be faithful to the end and encourages his readers to do likewise.

This is the last lesson of the year, and next Sunday we begin a new series. We should have learned a great deal in the last 12 months, and begin the new lessons with enthusiasm and keen interest.

Young Boy Held As Result Of Accidents

A 15-year-old boy is confined in the detention home today charged with violations of the motor code as the result of driving his father's car which struck a truck and two cars last night. He was apprehended in his Arlington avenue home by Cruiser Policemen T. Williams and G. Price.

The car he drove struck the truck of Richard McCartney, 1307 Wilmington avenue, at East Washington street, near Spruce street. McCartney pursued the hit-run car. It ran into a snow-bank at Oak and Spruce streets, was backed out and struck a car owned by Ward W. Karns, 604 Spruce street.

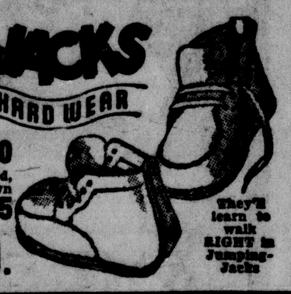

The hit run auto then turned around and travelled into Oak street where it struck a car with state license 44ZA8, the owner of which is yet unknown.

The boy was taken to city hall then placed in custody of Juvenile Court Officer Charles Ross.

Titans Battle Youngstown Here Tonight In Optimist Benefit Game

Two Of District's Top Quintets Will Clash In City's Annual Tilt

Westminster's Towering Titans continue a busy week of post-holiday action tonight when they meet Youngstown College at George Washington Junior High school here in the annual Optimist club inter-collegiate basketball game.

East Brook Boosters will meet United Engineering in the prelim at 7:30 p. m.

Both the Titans and the Penguins boast top teams in the district this year. Both have suffered only one defeat in play to date. Westminster was shaded Tuesday night 53-52 by strong Duquesne University while Youngstown's only set back came at the hands of Baldwin-Wallace earlier in the season.

Both Have Fine Records

The Titans own victories over Carnegie Tech, Maryland State, George Pepperdine, and Allegheny. The Penguins have defeated Alliance, Mariette, Ohio University, Muskingum, and Geneva. Last night the Youngstown quintet continued its winning ways by dumping Fenn College 61-56.

Tonight's game will be the only time either team will appear in New Castle.

Youngstown College, coached by Dom Roselli, has averaged better than 72 points per game, with all of the five starters sharing in the scoring.

Mike Magula, former Sharpsville star, is averaging close to 20 points per game, followed closely by Sam Jankovich of Farrell and center Walt Brian.

For tonight's game Magula and Jankovich will probably line up at forward, Brian at center, and Harry Krall and Eli Danilov at guards. Brian is the tallest at 6'3". Krall is the only starter under 6', going 5'10".

For Westminster it will probably be Johnny Abraham and Ed Halas at forwards, Pat King at center, and Jerry Sybert and Don Meyers at guards. Halas is tallest Titan starter at 6'4". King goes 6'3".

King Leading Scorer

King is leading Westminster scorer with 78 points, followed by Halas with 68 and Meyers with 64.

Saturday Westminster will play its third game of the week when the Titans journey to Farrell to meet the University of Detroit. The Detroiters have lost three games in eight starts.

Monday Westminster will be at Convention Hall in Philadelphia for a New Year's day tilt with St. Joseph's. The game is part of a double header featuring LaSalle and Temple in the other half of the night's activities.

Proceeds from tonight's game will go toward helping the New Castle Optimist club carry on its work for boys in the community.

The Optimist club sponsors such events as the Orange Crate Derby, the marble tournament, toy project at Christmas time, and other youth activities.

Belmont Stakes Purse Boosted

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Turfmen were elated today with Belmont Park's announcement that the Belmont stakes will be restored to its former $100,000 status next year.

For the last two years the mile and a half spring classic has had an added value of only $75,000.

Conditions for the 83rd running of th race next year remain the same, nominations close January 15 and $100 must accompany each nomination. It will cost $1,000 to start a colt or filly in the race. Geldings are not eligible.

There were 102 horses nominated last year but only nine got to the post in the race wor by King Ranch's Middleground.

Canes Invade South Union Friday Night

South Union, outside of Uniontown, awaits the invasion of New Castle's floor squad tomorrow night.

Unpredictable Hurricane players, blowing hot for four straight ball games, cooled off suddenly against seetion one passers, and now tally a four and two record.

South Union kept within reach of the Canes last year in losing 41-35, and can be expected to offer more than token opposition on the home floor this year.

The Unionites compete in section 10.

Recreation League Is Now Under Way

City Recreation League basketball is now under way in the six school gyms located in the various parts of the city.

The New Castle School Board has made available the school gyms and the City Recreation Board, under the direction of Rees Flannery has provided the supervision in the school gyms.

The men who supervise the league games in the various gyms are as follows. Rose Avenue, Dallas Hartman; Lincoln-Garfield, Paul Hawkins; Mahoning, Fred Wimer; Arthur McGill, Joe Sacco; Senior high, Bob Jackson; Ben Franklin, Lynn Irwin.

This is the sixth year for the league and 96 teams are competing. All teams have been organized and captains elected by the boys themselves. Each team has the authority to carry ten players. This makes the actual playing membership almost 960 boys up to the age of 17.

The Pollock Cardinals of the National Midgets; The American Junior Wild Cats and the American Senior Hawks won the crown last year but the present standing gives no indication of the champs for this year. Every team in the league still has a chance to win when league games are resumed with the opening of school January 2.

Universal A.A. And Shenango Y, Hanks-Gersons In Semi-Finals

Into the semi-finals go Gersons, Shenango Y, Hanks and Universals as a result of last night's YMCA holiday tournament play.

Gerson routed Wampum in the opener, 70 to 32 and won the right to play Hanks A. C. in one half of the semi-final. The Jewelers were never extended.

Harvey Burris and the Shenango Y sidetracked Slippery Rock in the second contest. The Y team, in the lead most of the way, was never secure until the final three minutes. Burris took scoring honors for the evening with 25

Carlson High Scorer

Hanks, as expected, cleared the bench in holding at bay, the Crunchers. The co-favorites now move into the semi-finals. They forged ahead early and kept out of trouble for the remainder of the game.

Universal Pottery, stayed unbeaten for the season by duplicating the Hanks-Cruncher score.

Carlson potted 19 as the two C-I teams played off their tournament feud.

Rangers Defeat Maple Leafs, 3-1

Two Fights Mar Stellar Contest

(By International News Service)

A rejuvenated New York Ranger sextet out-played and literally outfought the Toronto Maple Leafs last night as they bopped the league-leaders, 3 to 1.

Tony Leswick put the Blueshirts out in front in the opening period, ex-Ranger Cal Gardner knotting the count a few minutes later. Edgar Laprade scored on a power play in the same Stanza to put the New Yorkers out in front to stay.

Fights Occur

In the fisticuff department, the Leaf's Gus Mortson tangled with Ed Slowinski in the first period in a heavyweight go that lasted two minutes. The outcome saw Mortson floored by a right cross and both players sent to the cooler for five minutes.

Another brawl occurred in the final period, this time involving Allan Stanley and Ted Kennedy. Again, the Ranger player came out on top. No one, of course, wins these fights, but it gives the New York supporters something to cheer about.

At Boston, the Chicago Blackhawks remained one point in third place in the National Hockey league as the Boston Bruins fought them to a 4-4 deadlock.

Three Bruin goals in the closing period, climaxed by Woody Dumart's 40-footer with less than a minute to play, produced the tie.

SPORT SHORTS

Two football players named Monahan, not related and representing two different rivals were selected today by the Lehigh university coaching staff in naming an all-opponent football squad. They are Bill Monahan of Dartmouth at left tackle, and Jim Monahan of Rutgers at left halfback.

Thirty members of Lehigh university's first undefeated and untied football squad in 67 years of intercollegiate competition today received awards and insignia for participation during the nine-game season.

New Castle Hi-Y Team In Tournament Finals

New Castle Hi-Y belted Union Hi-Y yesterday morning 34-16 to win a ticket for semi-final tournament Hi-Y play.

Black contributed 17 points to the win.

Shenango Hi-Y bested Shenango Hi-Y 27-23 as Webber and Kirkwood piled up 19 and 21 points respectively.

The New Castle team moves into the semi-finals to play the winner of the Hi-Y Bullets and the Shenango YMCA games.

The finals will be held Friday morning at 10 a. m.

Will Tabulate PIAA Ballots

Cast Votes On Two Major Changes

HARRISBURG, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The vote on two major changes to the constitution of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association will be tabulated today by the board of control.

The ballots were cast earlier in district meetings by member schools of the high school sports regulating group.

One change would rephrase a provision to allow teams of member schools schedule games with opponents not employing full-time coaches.

The effect of the change would be to allow the squads of PIAA-member schools to schedule events with members of the Pennsylvania Catholic Interscholastic Athletic Association.

Would Limit Practices

The wrangle between the two organizations began more than two years ago with the PIAA standing fast on its ban against games with teams not coached by full-time mentors. A compromise was rejected by the PCIAA a year ago.

The second amendment would add to an existing provision clauses prohibiting PIAA basketball teams from practicing prior to November 15 and ban scheduled games before December 1 and outlaw out-of-season tilts.

After the regular meeting members of the board elected for 1951 will organize.

Packy McFarland To Fight Gonzalez

DETROIT, Dec. 28.—(INS)—Jack Laken, manager of Arizona featherweight Packy McFarland, announced today that his fighter will meet Corky Gonzalez, of Denver, in the 10-round headliner on the Omaha (Neb.) auditorium fight card January 9.

Laken said Omaha promoter Joe Smogye has promised the winner of the fight a crack at Sandy Saddler's world featherweight crown, probably in the spring.

Michigan State's candidate for place on any mythical all-sports all-star team is Bob Carey, 6' 5", 215 pound, blonde junior from Charlevoix, Mich.

Bowl Game Coaches Reach For Large Crying Towels

By JOHN BARRINGTON
(International News Service Sports Writer)

The fellow whose teams have lost two Rose bowl games in a row indicated mildly today that he fears the worst is yet to come.

Lynn Waldorf, whose California Golden Bears lost to Northwestern on New Year's Day of 1949 and to Ohio State on New Year's Day of 1950, looked forward to facing Michigan this New Year's Day in that same Rose bowl.

When told that Chuck Ortmann, Michigan's triple-threat tailback, is in good physical condition for next Monday's game at Pasadena, Calif., Waldorf moaned:

"He would be, for us."

Praises Ortmann

He added he considers Ortmann a much more difficult man to handle than anyone Ohio State had in beating the Bears a year ago.

Waldorf's doleful countenance was matched in kind at bowl locations from California to Florida and back.

At Biloxi, Miss., where his Oklahoma team is working out in an effort to win its third Sugar Bowl game in as many years. Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson found his hopes of beating Kentucky shaken by an injury to ace defensive back Buddy Jones.

Jones, whose savvy on pass defense has been figured as Oklahoma's greatest weapon against the passes of Kentucky's Babe Parilli, aggravated an old knee injury as the Sooner's staged their first Biloxi workout.

Cuts Contact Work

Wilkinson immediately said he would cut down on contact work as his squad prepares for its Jan. 1 date with the Wildcats in New Orleans.

"We can't afford injuries," he said.

Beset by unseasonable weather, Texas and Tennessee also were limiting the rough stuff as they prepared for their Cotton Bowl date at Dallas.

At Miami, meanwhile, the Clemson college football team checked in by air for its New Year's Day game in the Orange Bowl against the University of Miami.

Hard To Beat

It was the occasion for an unlooked-for turnabout. Coach Andy Gustafson of Miami, who said yesterday his team was looking worse than at any time since it started practicing for Clemson, changed his mind overnight.

"We'll be hard to beat," he said.

Fredonia Tops Scotties, 56-30

Union township bowed 56-30 Wednesday night to powerful little Fredonia high school of Mercer county on the Union high floor.

The Vocats, Western Pennsylvania class C champions of last season, got off to an early lead and were never headed. Several times the Scotties spurted and pulled within nine or ten points only to have Fredonia pull away again.

The Scotland Laners had the Vocats' vaunted center Charlie Craig pretty well bottled up throughout the first half, but couldn't stop the rest of the Fredonia team. Craig did a little better in the second half and ran his night's total to 21 points, his second lowest total of the season.

Union looked like it might make a game of it midway in the third quarter, when the Scotties rang up four straight field goals, three of them by Pete Barber. The rally stalled, however, and the Vocats coasted in.

In the preliminary game the Union Reserves hung up a 30-24 victory. Landy Peluso paced the Scottie scorers in that game.

HERE and THERE IN SPORTS LAND

PHEIDIPPIDES, the original marathon runner, dropped dead at the end of his long, tortuous grind. Thus, in 490 B.C., was invented one of the most hazardous "sports" known to civilization.

Ever since, marathoning has maintained its reputation of man-killer, even though down through the ages its practitioners have grown tougher so that now a majority manage to survive their excruciating 26-mile, 385-yard ordeals.

To ordinary humanity, it remains a source of constant inconceivability that traditions of the long bunion derby have been carried on right through the taxicab and air-coach eras. Although, to the best of our knowledge the last direct marathon fatality was that of Lazaro, the Portuguese, in the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, ambulances still are standard equipment around the gruesome gallops, writes Lou Miller, of the New York World-Telegram & Sun, in Allsports magazine.

Marathon courses vary as to difficulty, depending upon topographical differences. But toiling uphill and down, on through choking dust clouds, over hot, sticky roads, occasionally getting bowled over by automobiles or being chased off course by indiscriminating farm dogs—it's little wonder the leather-lunged cult keeps the medicos busy.

No nation has been able to win the Olympic marathon more than twice, although the United States, France and Finland also scored that number of victories. Besides Hayes, Uncle Sam had a winner in Thomas J. Hicks in 1904.

The next Olympic marathon king could be a South Korean, provided that nation's stars survive the current conflict and provided Russia does nothing to prevent celebration of the next Olympiad in Helsinki in 1952.

Kee Yong Ham, Kil Yoon Song and Yun Chil Choi were the Koreans who made that 1-2-3 sweep of the famous Boston Marathon last April. They finished without undue strain. Among the casualties that day was Sweden's Karl Gosta Leanderson, winner the previous year, who this time quit in agony in the 22nd mile.

SEVENTY-EIGHT GAMES in the National Football league this year attracted 1,936,000 patrons, plus 114,000 for the playoff games in Cleveland in which the Browns defeated the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams. . . . In 1949, only five out of seventeen teams in the two pro' circuits made money. This year there were 10 teams of 13 which didn't lose any money, and according to President Bert Bell the league paid $1,250,000 in amusement taxes. . . . Grantland Rice will head the Polio Sports Fund drive which commences January 15. . . . Parker Whiting's Thunderation from Fort Wayne, Ind., was the leading dash winner among two-year-old trotters which captured one or more major stakes in 1950. Thunderation recorded 15 wins in 28 trips to the post. The gelded son of Guy Day established two world's records for unsexed two-year-olds, one with a 2:04 mile and the other for two heats. The Indiana star annexed five seconds and a third to wind up in the 1-2-3 money 23 times during his initial season on the turf. . . . Eddie Stankey, former Cub, Dodger and Brave who contributed so much to the Giants' rise to third place in the National loop, will receive $30,000 next season, a raise of $10,000. . . . Johnny Pesky, Red Sox third baseman, is a disc jockey at a Boston radio station. Amid the whirling records he spins baseball yarns. . . . 103,048 fans are expected to see Michigan and California play in the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, January 1. . . . East and West will clash in the Shriners game to aid crippled children in the Shriners hospital. It is expected at least 60,000 will see the clash for a most worthy cause at San Francisco December 30. . . . A record that will never be beaten and probably never equalled is the 180 minutes of Rose Bowl playing time chalked up by Bob Reynolds of Stanford in three straight years, 1934, '35 and '36. . . . Inquiries have been received as to the whereabouts of Bill Ice, former local flying ace. Bill is still with the Flying Tiger Lions, Inc., at Stapleton Airfield in Denver, Colo.

Flyers Edge Hornets, 2-1

(By International News Sedvice)

The St. Louis Flyers needed just two minutes to nose out the Pittsburgh Hornets, 2-1, last night in their American Rockey league game at St. Louis.

The first and last periods of the game were scoreless but in the middle frame the Flyers scored twice while the Hornets managed to get only one goal.

The Cincinnati Mohawks had a rough time on home ice when they lost a game also their star goalie Emile Francis in a battle with Buffalo.

The Mohawks had two men in the Penalty box when the Bisons scored two third period goals for a 7-5 victory which kept Cincinnati a full four games behind the pace-setting Cleveland Barons in the Western division. Francis reinjured his shoulder and was replaced.

Center Les Douglas' third goal of the night, with only 21 seconds left, gave the Barons a 6-5 triumph over the spirited Springfield Indians.

New York Stocks

Stock Market Is Irregular

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(INS)—The stock market turned irregular today as profit-taking appeared following yesterday's broad upsurge. Selected issues continued to move higher but gains were generally restricted. Dealings proceeded at a brisk pace with the ticker falling behind as much as three minutes for an 18-minute stretch in the first half hour.

Among the better acting industrial issues were Allied Chemical which was up ¾ at 59⅞. American Cyanamid up ¾ at 73⅝ and Kennecott Copper up ⅞ at 75⅞. Steels were slightly higher with U. S. Steel up ¼ at 41¾ and Bethlehem up ⅛ at 49⅜.

Motors were laggards, reflecting the Studebaker announcement of a curtailment in civilian output next month. Studebaker was off ¾ at 28½, Chrysler was down ¾ at 70 and General Motors was off ⅛ at 46⅞.

Television issues attracted buying. Zenith was up 1 at 49½ and Radio Corporations was up ½ to 17¼ on a block of 5,000 shares.

Rails were mixed. Pennsylvania was up ¼ at 22⅝ and Missouri preferred gained ½ to 22½. This contrasted wtih a loss of a point in Atchison to 146 and a drop of ⅛ in Southern Railway to 51½.

Curb stocks held steady. Electric Bond & Share was unchanged, Pennroad was up ⅛ and Kaiser Frazer was unchanged.

Big board bonds were firm, with rail issues favoring the upside.

New York Police Hunting Suspect In Torso Murder

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—Tentative identification of New York's long-unknown woman torso murder victim launched police today on one of their greatest hunts—for a man believed to have been her common-law husband.

The mutilated victim, a slim, reddish-blonde woman of about 35, has been tentatively identified as Dorothy Martin, daughter of the postmaster at upstate Saugerties, N. Y.

Police believe the identification is correct. The man they are seeking for questioning is Pasquale Donofrio, known in Brooklyn as a minor police character. He is a house-painter by trade.

Identity of the woman murder victim has been a mystery since parts of her body were found in two suitcases Dec. 4, in 10-cent storage lockers of the Long Island Railroad's Flatbush Avenue station in Brooklyn. The station is only a short distance from where Miss Martin lived.

A scramble of half-clues, grim deductions and freshly-painted green walls in Miss Martin's room led to the tentative identification of the victim and her alleged lover. Miss Martin's stepmother told State Police she put two and two together and feared the worst.

Mrs. John Martin said her suspicious were aroused when she failed to receive an expected Christmas card from her stepdauhgter. She told State Police that she last heard from Miss Martin at Thanksgiving time.

Medical experts believe the torso murder victim was strangled a day or two after Thanksgiving. Her hands and bridgework were missing when the cases were found, hampering identification efforts.

Mrs. Martin told police she had read news stories regarding the torso murder case and that in many respects the description of the victim tallied with her stepdaughter's. Miss Martin had an appendectomy scar as did the nude victim. Both were about 35. Both had bad hearts. Both wore false teeth and required arch supports.

State Police notified Brooklyn officials who visited Miss Martin's Brooklyn address and found that a man and woman, known as Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Donofrio, lived there in a furnished room for a short time in November and December.

Miss Martin was later described by police as Donofrio's common-law wife.

The superintendent of the Brooklyn house, Sam Blumenfield, told police Donofrio and the woman he introduced as his wife moved into the house Nov. 7. Two weeks later, Blumenfield said, he realized he had not seen the woman for some time and asked where she was. Donofrio reportedly told him she had gone to Albany.

Donofrio disappeared about two weeks ago, Blumenfield said.

The superintendent led detectives to Donofrio's former room and showed him two cream-painted walls and two vivid green ones. Blumenfield said all the walls were cream when the couple moved in but that he found the green walls after Donofrio disappeared. Homicide detectives scraped the green paint from the walls and took it to police laboratories for chemical tests.

Shift In City Fire And Police Bureaus

George Haering, member of the city police force for several years, will become a city fireman, Jan. 1, having been recently elected to that position by members of council.

Mayor John F. Haven will have three vacancies in the department to fill early next year, that of Haering and also the places of George Kennedy and Peter Hillers who will retire on pension.

Dog Goes Through Tunnel At Rate Of 766 Feet Per Minute

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(INS)—New York's dogcatcher began looking for the culprit who eluded toll guards at the Jersey end of the Lincoln Tunnel Wednesday, stopped traffic all along the underwater route and then trotted off towards Times Square.

A four or five-year-old Spitz slipped past the tunnel guards at Weehawken and headed into the tunnel without paying the regular 50-cent toll. Police stopped all New York bound traffic to let the dog safely through the 4,600-foot tube and set up road blocks at the Manhattan end.

The four-footed trespasser evaded the dog block.

Port authority officials estimated the dog's speed at 766.66 feet a minute.

RED FEATHER

Story books tell us that the Indians used a red feather to mean danger.

A red skin sometimes means danger too.

Scarlet fever and measles and erysipelas make the skin pretty red. It means to stay away from there.

Vaccination keeps smallpox away.

Sally blushes sometimes and her cheeks get red. Butch will notice those red cheeks some day, then goodbye Butch. He will be a goner.

It seems that we do not have as many cases of contagious disease nowadays.

Instead of having white hearses, we have play grounds and schools. We have more old people too.

That means that we will have to learn about geriatics as well as pediatrics besides knowing how to spell them.

State Police Say:

Some motorists appear to be of the opinion that when they come to a stop at a STOP sign before entering a through highway, their duty is completed. The law requires that when the operator of a motor vehicle stops in obedience to a sign he shall remain stopped until the highway is clear and free of oncoming traffic from either direction. In other words, he must yield the right-of-way to all traffic on the through street or highway.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

"History Is on Our Side," by Joseph Needham, is an Englishman's optistic view of the world outlook today. He counts on American democratic spirit to ultimately triumph. "The essence of that spirit," he writes, "is expressed in the train porter who was told that Lord Halifax would be riding in his car and that he would find the then-English Ambassador to Washington extremely democratic and easy to get on with. The porter replied, 'Well, he'll find me just the same.'"

Rev. William Petherick writes about a minister who arose to deliver his sermon, carefully laid the manuscript on the pulpit, and began fishing for his glasses. A member of the congregation caused something of a crisis by rising to his feet and asking in a respectful but firm voice, "Reverend, how do you expect us to remember your sermon if you can't?"

Although they are so tiny they are invisible, neutrons are so "heavy" that a teaspoonful would weigh close to 210 million tons, according to scientists.
